Synopsis: 5-year-old Gillian Grace Barnaby has lived a sheltered life. In fact, so sheltered that she has never even left the city limits of Halloweentown. But when her parents are killed in a mysterious fire that nobody could have started, Gillian is sent to live with her estranged, "wacko" Aunt Lydia. While at first Aunt Lydia lives up to her reputation as a "Wicked Witch," she begins to take the situation a little too seriously and one night after Gillian goes to bed she tries to transform her niece into a boy. With the help of her friend, Drea, Gillian discovers that there is a world beyond Halloweentown called Earth. Upon arriving in the real world, Gillian realizes that she can be anything she wants. If she wants to join the boy scouts she can; if she wants to be a lawyer; if she wants to be a travel writer, she can travel the world. This also means she can never go back to Halloweentown, where her parents died and where she has no friends. But there are two problems... one is that Gillian wants to return to Halloweentown where there is still the chance of finding her parents alive. The other problem is that if she goes back to Halloweentown she will have to leave Aunt Lydia behind, which seems wrong to Gillian. So on the advice of her mother's friend, Miss Violet Beauregarde, who was an expert on places like Earth, Gillian decides to take a vacation in New York she can decide what to do.
