It was released on May 19, 2017 through Warner Bros. Records and Machine Shop, following the 2014 album The Hunting Party. This is Linkin Park's first album with a title track. Heavy is the first single from the album. The band's official music video for the song was released on YouTube on March 9, 2017. The album includes performances by guests from Pusha T, Stormzy and Kiiara, the latter of whom is the first singer to appear on Linkin Park's studio album. The album also includes John Green, Julia Michaels, Justin Tranter, Ross Golan, Michael Leary, Andrew Goldstein, Blackbear and Eg White as songwriters. One More Light was promoted by the band with various acoustic performances by Chester Bennington and Mike Shinoda from the lead single at many promotional events and interviews. Some of them included performances with Kiyara, Waks and Sofia Karlberg. One More Light is the seventh studio album by American rock band Linkin Park. It was released on May 19, 2017 through Warner Bros. Records and Machine Shop, following the 2014 album The Hunting Party. The album's first single, Heavy, was released on February 16, 2017. This is their first album with a title track. When deciding on the title track, they felt that the song One More Light was the heart of the album. The album includes guest vocal performances from Pusha T, Stormzy and Kiiara, as well as collaborations in the production and writing of songs with Julia Michaels, Justin Tranter, Ross Golan, Andrew Goldstein, Blackbear and Eg White. Tracklist-New, final and latest album from Linkin Park doesn't have any rock in it, it seems, and sounds like a teenage band of wannabes of superstars. What happened to rock stars under the influence of metal? There was no more cruelty in the guitar riffs, no more cries in Chester's singing, it seems that they want to reinvent themselves as the Transformers saga, and in an attempt they become pop and empty music. The only thing to keep the vibe is rapper Mike Shinoda's Good Goodbye, the only wonderful song on the album that has the atmosphere of the good old days when they started with the rebels and the energy that mixed rock and hip-hop there for the 00s. As the songs advanced I didn't hear any shout from Chester, and just listened more and more pop, almost like Maroon 5. This new sound seems so American, so produced by machines, for late movies, for credit scenes, no guitar, no bass, only Chester and fetching, no more Dj do scratching, no more Mike Shinnod rape. With Sharp Edges they completely lost me. This is a strange end for one of the greatest and most beloved rock bands in history. It was released on May 19, 2017 through Warner Bros. and Machine Shop and is Linkin Park's last recording featuring vocalist Chester Bennington before his death on July 20, 2017.The band recorded the album between September 2015 and February 2017 in several studios. The main producers of the album were Brad Delson and Mike Shinoda. The sound of One More Light has been described as more pop-oriented, moving away from the alternative rock and alternative metallic sounds of their previous albums. The album includes guest vocal performances from Pusha T, Stormzy and Kiiara, as well as collaborations in the production and writing of songs with Julia Michaels, Justin Tranter, Ross Golan, Andrew Goldstein, Blackbear and Eg White. The album is also the band's first album to release the title track, as they felt that the song One More Light was the heart of the album. The lead single featuring Kiiara was released on February 16, 2017. Battle Symphony, Good Goodbye and Invisible were released as promotional singles before the album's release. Talking to Myself and One More Light were released as radio singles later. The album performed well on a commercial basis, debuting at number one in several countries; it also became the fifth number one album on the Billboard 200 and was certified gold in five countries. Despite the positive commercial performance, it received mixed reviews from music critics. This, along with the sales allegations, prompted an angry reaction from Bennington.In 2014 Linkin Park released their sixth studio album The Hunting Party. The album, produced by Mike Shinoda and Brad Delson, marked a shift from total rock sounding to their previous albums, produced with the help of Rick Rubin. The one More Light pre-production began in mid-2015 during Shinoda's Hunting Party tour on his phone. The main production began immediately after the end of the tour. At the same time, the band decided to write songs with some external help. They've been working with caret Hassan, bringing his song Sailing Through the Clouds, Martin Garrix, Hot Karl, Mike Baxor of Her0, The Lonely в результате чего «Things in My» My» and one Ok Rock. However, none of these collaborations made the final version of the album. The album marks the second, which was produced after The Hunting Party.As a new concept for the band, all the songs presented on the album, began with the fact that the vocals were recorded first. First they worked on the story, then on the hook and finally on the music. In an interview with Shane Lowe, Shinoda explained the composition this way: In terms of recording style, it's one of the most diverse stylistically, there are more genres of mash in this album than anything we've ever put out. You don't hear a lot of super heavy guitars. There is no shouting at the record. He adds: To some extent it's a very polished recording. Stylistically we like to mix all the sounds and genres together so you can't tell them apart. On why they chose Heavy to present the album to the world, he told Billboard: One of the reasons we chose Heavy as the first single is that it's really the main sound of the album. It wasn't a script where the whole album sounds one way, and the single sounds different. That's what the album sounds like. So we wanted to come out with a song where everyone can understand the direction of this work. According to him, many songs on the album can make the listener remember old songs The Cure or Tears For Fears. In an interview with MusicRadar, Brad Delson explained: I ended up putting a lot of guitar on this album. There's a lot of layers and a lot of different guitars. The guitar work is fine and complements all the other elements that we have put in there. I consider guitar to be the dominant ingredient in any soup. The minute I put loud heavy guitars in the arrangement, I feel like it's a heavy color. One of the goals of producing this album was to understand any concept of the genre. We were looking for ways to match the influences that we have in a way that you haven't heard before. Building a guitar work in what was a fun challenge. I love the guitar work and tones that our engineer Ethan helped create with me and Mike (Shinoda) throughout the album. Even if you don't hear the guitar in the foreground in a heavy hand way, there's really a ton of guitar on this album and I'm very proud of it. Brad Delson talked about his guitar work, Delson said, I love the acoustic work on Sharp Edges. I really like all the layers of guitars on Invisible as well. There's also a really unique presentation of the guitar in a way that I don't think we've ever done on a song called Sorry For Now. It was one of the things we were really excited about - it's wildly different from anything we did. The albums include collaborations with songwriters and other artists. 'Heavy' features pop singer's vocals And The Good Farewell features verses by rappers Pusha T and Stormzy. The album was described as pop, pop rock and electropop. One of Bennington's last performances with Linkin Park on July 4, 2017 at the O2 Brixton Academy in London.The band wrote and recorded mainly in Los Angeles, but also had several sessions in London and Canada, where they worked with several songwriters. In Los Angeles, the band began working at Larrabee Studios, where they worked on their previous album. Noticing that the band needed a little more space, they switched to Sphere Studios. Beginning in early 2016, the band decided for the first time to open its process to fans through social networks, making live broadcasts, posting photos and videos of their day in the studio and sending studio updates to their mailing list. In an interview with Billboard, Shinoda said, We focused almost exclusively on songwriting, not on sound, not on genre, not on arrangement, on words and melodies. And that's what Rick (Ruby) always told us to do past years and we never listened because we started to always track in the first place. Now we're writing songs, and now we're just starting to get in that style. Working with Justin Parker in London, Mike also learned to write songs without any sound and, instead, write with meaning in mind. Instead of writing tracks piece by piece, the band would not leave the session without a song. It would start as a conversation, and from them the songs will build gradually from chords to lyrics. Among the collaborators are Justin Parker, Conner Youngblood, John Green, Blackbeard, Andrew Goldstein, 26 Eg White, Emily Wright, Andrew Boluki, Andrew Dawson, RAC, Corrine Roddick, and Ross Golan. American singer Kiyara also had a seven-hour session with Linkin Park to record her vocals for 'Heavy', and rappers Stormzy and Pusha T contributed to the album with original lyrics. In the past, the band had a different approach to collaboration, as Mike explained: Usually it means we've finished the song, but we'll ask someone to add something to the top. He added: Overall, here's how it would work: we'd get in a room with someone and start on something from scratch with them. We worked mostly the same way we always write songs, but with extra firepower in the room. Bennington also contacted Billy Howerdel of A Perfect Circle to work on the song for the album. They collaborated on a track called Eat the Elephant, but in the end the album was not quite in line with the direction of One More Light. Howerdel completely reworked the song musically and lyrically, and recorded it with Maynard James Keenan on vocals for their April 2018 Eat an elephant. In an interview with Kerrang! Shinoda explained that the children seen on the album cover are the children of a friend of the band and represent what the band members feel when their families get together. The photo was taken at Venice Beach by Frank Maddox, who was previously involved in the creation of works for Deftones and Green Day's Revolution Radio. The album was available on Linkin Park's official website in five different packages: CD and LPU membership, vinyl and LPU Membership, CD bundle, vinyl beam, and Just Give Me All Set Boxes. All offers were accompanied by a digital LPU membership. Both CD bundle and vinyl bundles include another light t-shirt and a silver Linkin Park logo enamel pin. The box set was tied up inside a special One More Light super suite box with a 48-page hardcover book featuring all the best photos from the album package and all the lyrics, a unique 2.4' × 1.8' instant photo of the band, and a gold enamel pin set featuring a Linkin Park pin, an LP Hex logo pin, and an 'OML' logo pin. It also included cd and vinyl versions of the album, as well as a One More Light T-shirt. Chester Bennington (left) and Mike Shinoda (right) held fourteen promotional shows to promote the album. The first single, 'Heavy', was released on Los Angeles radio station CROS on February 16, 2017. The track is a duet with American singer-songwriter Kiyara, which was the first time linkin Park's song was a vocalist. The song was written by Linkin Park with Julia Michaels and Justin Tranter, while Emily Wright and Andrew Boluki were engaged in vocals. On March 16, 2017, the band released a second track from the album Battle Symphony with an accompanying lyrical video. The third track from the album, Good Goodbye, was released for download on April 13, 2017, along with an accompanying lyrical video, followed by a clip. The song features American rapper Pusha T and English hip-hop artist Stormzy. On May 10, 2017, the band released their last preview track, 'Invisible', with an accompanying lyrical video. Talking to Myself was sent to alternative radio on July 25, 2017 as the album's second official single. The music video for Talking to Myself was released on July 20, 2017, the same day as Bennington's death. In early 2017, the group introduced Linkin Park Global Ambassadors, which were selected each for the country. Ambassadors will promote Linkin Park updates in their home countries. Ambassadors were also given various tasks related to updates. For promotional purposes, a photo of the TELEVISION colour bars was uploaded to Instagram by Linksin Park Global Ambassadors and many other people associated with the group, such as Joe Hahn, Mike Shinoda, Chester Bennington, Phoenix, Lorenzo Adam Rumer, Jim Digby, Christian Tachier, Tobias Fengs, Frank Maddox, Tal Cooperman and the official Account of Warner Bros. Records. The band also released an 8-video series on its official website showing fans the process of creating songs for the album. On February 13, Linkin Park tweeted an empty net, and each of Linkin Park Global's ambassadors tweeted an ineerily image. When combined, the images formed the album cover. The lyrics for Heavy were presented on Genius on the same day. Linkin Park did a stripped-down performance from Kiiara at NRG Studios, which was broadcast live on Facebook on the same day Heavy was released along with his lyrical video and pre-order album. The stripped-down version of the song was performed repeatedly. Shinoda and Bennington played the song fourteen times at different venues for promotion. The band performed the song on The Late Late Show with James Corden and at the 2017 ECHO Awards with Kiyara. Acoustic performances by lead single Chester Bennington and Mike Shinoda helped promote One More Light. Some of them included performances with Kiyara, Waks and Sofia Karlberg. The band was due to embark on a world tour to promote the album, which began in May 2017. The tour included stops at various festivals, including download festival Paris, Aerodrome Festival, NovaRock, Impact Festival, I-Days Milano, Hellfest, Download Festival Madrid, Hurricane Festival, Southside Festival, Telekom VOLT Fesztiv'l, Br'valla Festival, Rock Verchter, and many others. The tour visited 20 cities in South America and Europe. The North American leg of the tour was cancelled following the death of Chester Bennington on July 20, 2017.Professional ratingsMagenic scoresSource:4/10 Assessment ReviewSource:Supplied which assigns a normalized rating of 100 to reviews from major critics, the album has an average score of 46 out of 100 based on 7 reviews, which indicates mixed or average reviews. NME criticized the quality of the album, giving it a 2/10 rating and concluding that it's cruel to criticize a great band for trying something different, and it's not a problem that it's a pop album. The problem is that it is a weak and far-fetched commercial move (perhaps to compete with the likes of Twenty One Pilots). AllMusic's Neil S. Yong agreed, saying that the problem is not that it's a pop effort; indeed, they get points for a brave attempt so outside their wheelhouse. The problem is that most of the other light is devoid of this visceral charge, which previously defined most of their catalog. there are no wild cries from Chester Bennington, there are any riffs, and DJ Khan disappeared under the textured studio sheen. The Rock team criticized the move from rock music, saying that the album makes Ed Sheeran sound like Extreme Noise Terror. With another light, Linkin Park waved goodbye rock. Troy L. Smith of The Plain Dealer described Invisible and Nobody Can Save Me as well rounded pop songs, but also noted, It won't stop Linkin Park from getting a sweet tooth from a whiny Halfway Right or a boring title track. Heck, even Skrillex-like EDM can't save sorry for now from banal territory. The Sound investigation criticized the album for sounding as if it were trying to chase the pop-EDM trend in an attempt to capitalize on its ubiquity and sound as if they were chosen by a committee, resulting in what sounded like a confusing mess of recording from a band that completely gave up any sense of identity. Newsday gave the album B and praised the band's new direction, comparing it to the works of Coldplay and Owl City, concluding, One More Light shows how well Linkin Park has absorbed the current pop scene and applied it to its own music to really reflect who they are today and not who some fans want them to be. The band, in particular the frontman of Chester Bennington, pounced in response to the negative reception of One More Light material. As was documented in Spin magazine, in an interview with Music Week, Bennington, on accusations that the band sold, suggested that these people should hit themselves in the face and move on from the band's past sound. Similarly, in a separate interview with Kerrang, Bennington, in response to the sales statements from the album, said: If you're going to be the person who says how they made the marketing decision to make this kind of record to make money you can meet me outside and I'll beat you in the mouth. In the same interview, Mike Shinoda also rejected claims that they had made the album for monetary reasons, replying, This is not how I work. Bennington explained that the sale charge angered him because he saw it as a personal attack, concluding that when you do it personal, like a personal attack on who we are, like people, like, man, shut up. That means I can really have feelings about it, and most of the time my feelings are I want to kill you. In response to the comments, Slipknot and Stone Sour frontman Corey Taylor stated that he understood Bennington's frustration, but advised him to be happy for what you have, lucky for the fact that people still come to see you to hear the music. Give him a little time, you have to give him a little time. Bennington later replied that he agreed with Taylor's statements, saying: I agree with Appreciate our fans. I'm a person and sometimes take things too personally. Most of our fans have been very positive lately. Some.. Not much. Any way. There is a lot of passion on both sides and I am grateful to all our fans. Corey's a good dude, and I appreciate him too. It's time to recalibrate my point of view. So I say to all our fans. Thank you, and I love you all. Peace, love and happiness. Another LightNo.TitleWriter (s)Producer (s)Length1.'No one can save me'John Green'b-Andrew Boluki'c'65'3:452.
