Photo Credit: Lyndsey Anne Photography Here is a complete guide to which manufacturers should tip (and how much!) on their wedding day. Hospitality: If the contract does not include a tip, you can tip 15-20 percent of the total bill. Another way to tip is offering $50 to $100 for each chef and $20 to $50 per server. Wedding planner: Wedding planners can not expect a tip, so this is not mandatory based on the service. If you have received a huge discount or the designer has gone far beyond and beyond the contracted services, offering a tip of 10-20 percent is a nice way to say thank you for your efforts. Photographer and video: You don't have to tip if they own the studio. If not, you can give them an extra $50 to $200 for a nice gesture. If you have two or three shooters, which is a $50 to $100 tip, that each person (who does their own business) is optional. Ceremony staff and reception staff: It is not mandatory to tip the ceremony staff, reception staff and delivery staff, but if you wish, you can offer them $20-$50 each. Officiant: Often times in office do not accept tips, but a $100 donation to the church is a great way to thank them. If the official is non-denoimental, consider providing them with a $100 tip, especially if you're not charging for the service. Hair and makeup artist: A 15-20 per cent tip is expected as it would be for any other regular salon visit, but that's not necessary. Band or DJ: Offering a 10-15 percent tip is a nice gesture to your band or DJ, especially if you need to carry a lot of heavy equipment from place to place. For musicians, the $25 to $50 tip per band member is appropriate. Shipping: A 15 percent tip is optional if it's not included in the contract. Florist: The florist doesn't count as a tip. However, if you do an excellent job, you can consider giving them a 10-15 percent tip after providing services. Keep this in mind: Although tipping weddings has become a habit in all service areas, it is optional or even expected by most wedding pros. With the exception of the catering staff and possibly the location, tips are considered a pleasant surprise by almost all sellers. If you don't have the money to shell out thousands of tips, there are a few gestures that go a long way for the team of wedding pros. Send an email to the review, a handwritten thank you note, or a review by Yelp or WeddingWire is a great way to show appreciation and offer something the seller can use when booking with future customers. Better yet, refer manufacturers to your friends - this gesture goes much further than a cash tip! Tipping is supposed to act as a reward, so you don't have to consider the mandatory cost. Tips are designed to be given to excellent service or sellers who go beyond contracted tasks. Before you tip, check your contracts. Some manufacturers, especially sites and hospitality companies, include a contract to help eliminate confusion. You know you're supposed to tip at a restaurant, in your barbershop, and when you get out of a cab, but did you know you should tip the vendors at your wedding? Before the wedding rolls around, take a good look at the supplier's contracts to see if tips are included. You might see a line for this supplier and bartender, but most other manufacturers don't include tips on fees. Familiarize yourself with who is not and does not include tips, you can get ready to head to the bank to pick up some money. Assuming that none of the wedding sellers include tips on the prizes, we will provide in advance the final list of who will get a tip (and exactly how much). Emily Roberts/ Bride If you are an official member of the clergy, you may not be able to tip her directly, but you may make an additional donation to the house of worship. A non-priest, tip around $50. As a rule, it is not necessary to tip the owner of the company (which wedding photographers often do), although it can tip $100 or more if you feel inclined. If you have an assistant, tip the assistant $50 to $75. The tip (or service charge) is often included in the entire invoice. If you don't (or if you want to have a little more), $10 to $20 per person is a nice gesture. Unlike in a restaurant, the waiting staff for the wedding do not depend on tips on wages. Tips are often included in your food delivery package, and tips are often included in your bill. If you don't, or if you hired the bartender separately, tip 10-15 percent of the pre-tax bar bill, you need to divide it with the evening bartenders. If you tip the bartenders, make sure they don't even receive tips from their guests. For a wedding in a hotel or set up venue, you can work directly with either a catering or banquet manager throughout the process. If they are not even serving as your wedding coordinator, be sure to tip them $250-$500 for their service. As in the salon, tipping 20 percent of the service. You can also enter this tip yourself, the bridesmaid's services or include a tip in full that all belongs, so make sure you have enough cash on hand. This applies to both the ceremony musicians and the orchestra or DJ. If tipping is not included in the contract for musicians, tip between $25 and $50 per person. Don't forget the band's sound seller. Many transport companies include tips on their bills. If that doesn't apply to the contract, 15 to 20 percent of the pre-tax bill has a good set of goals. Whether or not you pay guest's cars to be parking valets, you should cover your tips yourself. Tip $1-$2 per car, to be shared among staff. Place a sign on the valet station so guests know the tip has been taken care of. Expect anywhere from $0.50 to $2 per guest. Again, make sure your guests know that tipping is covered, so they don't feel obligated to hand out singles all night. As business owners, these pros don't expect tips. However, if you really loved their work or felt like you went beyond that, consider putting in cash or a check for your email after the wedding, as well as a thank you card (especially since the designer is the only one of these sellers you'll probably see on your wedding day). If your designer brought an assistant who did great work, be sure to send over a tip for her or her out as well. Anywhere from $50-$150 corresponding to a designer's assistant, the higher amounts who actually went beyond call of duty. Ingrid Bonne photography Has itemized her wedding budget down to the last cent. But all the numbers tallied up may be forgetting the costly, but necessary, cost: Tips! Wedding sellers play an important role in the success of your big day, and if you meet or exceed the expectations you will want to reward them! But which seller should tip? And how much? And when? We know it's confusing, so we've put together a handy guide to tips from suppliers. Ana's Event Planning and Planning A few things before you dive in: 1. First take a good, hard look at your wedding contracts. Read them to see if the tip cover is included. It's pretty generic to cover the location, hospitality, and even delivery contracts. If that's the case, there's no need for any more tips. 2. The service charge is not necessarily a tip. Why are the contracts so confusing? Okay, here's the deal: The service charge is a mandatory fee to get added to your venue and/or hospitality contract. Service charges don't necessarily go directly to employees, so you need to ask how the money is used. This extra fee can be applied to anything from site maintenance to administrative costs, so if you don't see the tip written out on the final bill, you may also need a tip. 3. No you don't have to tip the owner of a business — just your employees. The thought process behind it is that you've been paying what the business owner has deemed the right price for your service. However, feel free to ignore this rule when you rock your socks off. Prepare tips in advance. Go to the bank before the wedding, pull out the money and put all the tips in a labeled envelope. Then assign the most responsible member of the bridal party to hand them out during the event. 5. And finally, unless you have built into the contract, tipping is never mandatory. If you simply don't have money in your reserve, you can express appreciation in other ways. Write a rave 5-star review online for your vendors, let them use some stunning photos of your wedding for their portfolio, give them a large bottle of wine, or send them a handwritten thank-you note. They'll feel the warm fuzzies from your thoughtful gesture. Epic images | Montage Beverly Hills Now Without Further a... Expected Tips: Shipping + Setup Of course, you may have already paid a shipping fee, but it's customary to tip people into delivering and/or setting up wedding cake, flowers, tents, or higher rents. How much? 5 -$20 per person, depending on the complexity of the setting. When? On delivery. If you wish, you can enter the tip envelope to the on-site coordinator or catering manager before the wedding day so you can distribute them. Officiant Although this tip is in the expected category, you do not need cash. In fact, many religious officials don't accept cash tips. And government officials, such as a judge, are legally prohibited from accepting one! Here's how to deal with this: How much? $50-$100 tip or $100-$500 donation to their church, synagogue or house of worship. When? At rehearsal or rehearsal dinner. A little gift would be a nice symbol of thanks too, especially if the official is actually one of your friends! Makeup artists/ HairdressersStandard salon visit tips rules apply. You will want to tip the stylist to do the bridal party hair and makeup as well. How much? 15-20% when? After you do your makeup and hair. Alycia Moore Photography + Videography Check Your Contract First Tips: BartendersIf the bartenders have a package deal with the venue, then the tip is likely to be included. If you are using a bartender company, see if you need an additional tip from your staff. Note: wedding guests don't have to ask you to tip, so just say no to bar tip jars. How much? 10-20% of the alcohol bill (to be shared between them) if the tip is not included. When? At the end of the bet, when how much liqueur liqueur Wedding guests were able to throw it down. Catering staffA tip should be included in the venue and/or catering contract, but if not: How much? 15-20% of the food and drink bill. You can also opt for cash tips as follows: Catering/Banquet Manager and Head Waiter: $100-$300 eachHead Chef: $50-$100 Wait for staff and kitchen staff: $20 eachWhen? At the end of the bet. Or make it in the beginning to inspire fab service! TransportationOfentimes transportation companies also tip in their contracts. But if yours isn't, here's what you can tip at a time of arrival for bridal party delivery as well as guest transfers! How much? 15-20% when? When you're recording or after the last trip. Location EscortsIt may include parking valet, jacket inspection attendants, or restroom attendants. Again, the tip should be included, but if not: How much? $1-$2 per guest or per car for valets parking. When? We recommend tipping these escorts at the start of the wedding, so let well-meaning guests know that all tips have been taken care of by their hosts! Del'avant Event Centre | Scobeys Optional Tips: Coordinator / Wedding Planner Although the wedding planner does not expect a tip, you can always give one if he or she has gone beyond you! How much? 15-20% of the prize, up to $500 in cash or a nice gift! When? At the end of the reception or returning from the honeymoon. DJ / MusiciansFont tipping the ceremony, cocktail hours, reception musicians, and / or DJ for well done work. And do not forget about the sound technicians, if applicable. How much? Here's a general guideline: Ceremony Musicians: 15% of the ceremony's music fee is either $15-$25 per musician. Reception Band: $25-$50 per musician. DJ: 10-15% of the total bill or $50-$150.When? After their performance. Photo Booth AttendantS are handing out props, encouraging people to say cheese, and interacting with kiddos. If you've done stand-up work, you might want to add them to your tip number. How much? $50-$100 depending on the duration of the bet and the number of guests. When? At the end of the bet. Photographer + VideosIf the photographer/videoer owns the business, the tip is optional; but again, you may want to give a symbol of appreciation. And if there are second shooters or assistants, it's tactful to tip them, too. How much? $50-$200 each, or a nice gift! When? At the end of the reception or returning from the honeymoon. Do you need a rifle? Put this on. Filed under checklists, budget wedding ideas, expert advice
