Kriepke (December 23, 1876 – September 1, 1951) was a German-born American physical chemist. He studied at the University of Heidelberg, where he earned his doctorate in 1904 under Karl Landsteiner. After graduating from Heidelberg, he went to the University of Strassburg, where he earned his habilitation (a university-level degree which qualifies its holder for a professorship) in 1910. He was professor of physical chemistry at the University of Bonn (1910–12), and later worked at Harvard University (1912–21). After returning to Germany in 1921, he became a professor at the University of Marburg (1921–37). He worked at the University of Freiburg (1937–45) and the University of Vienna (1945–51).
