k1l: yeah, well, it's been almost a year and I've done nothing with that... I don't want to waste more time k1l: I am willing to buy a license and give it a go again though I might do the same as I did last time and it worked for me just that I got a weird licence error or is that the same one? lol. i just told you i'm getting the same ppf: exactly the same error? yep cool, thanks does that happen if you just start revit and don't do anything? hm, I never tried that I suppose I should that would probably help I'll give it a try and report back I think I heard that it's possible to download a build of Revit from the sourceforge web site for free. I'd do that if I were you. It's not the latest build, but it's supposed to work. waltman: yes, I read something about that waltman: but I don't know how to get that program for linux I don't think it runs under Wine. I read that there is some wine or deb wine or something but it was some time ago and I don't remember what it was called I'm running Revit on an XP virtual machine right now. It's slow as heck but the UI works perfectly. k, I will give that a try I am gonna give it a try aswell and see what happens thanks for your help You're welcome. hi what are you guys up to? good morning everyone ;-) 'lo gry, he's napping, believe it or 520fdb1ae7
