When using our online Search Tool Certificate Analysis, keep in mind the following: Make sure you enter the correct directory number and lot/control number in the searchfields If you have a set, try to find a Certificate of Analysis using kit information as well as information for the individual components of the Certificate of Analysis that you are looking for may not be available through the website. In this case you can contact your Bio-Rad representative or use the query form if you can't find the certificate of analysis you're looking for, please contact us. Where can I find a directory number, SKU number or product number? The catalog number, SKU number or product number are printed on the product label. Below is a sample label to determine the location of this information. Analysis certificates are not only related to the product, but also to a certain amount of this product. For this product, there may be several certificates of analysis, especially if it is an old product line and has had several lots produced over the years. Using the Certificate of Analysis search tool, you can enter the catalog number and lot/management number for the specific product you have at hand and download the exact analysis certificate you need. I have a party number, not a lot/control number. How do I find an Analysis Certificate for my product? You can use the lot number instead of lot/management numbers. Use the Certificate of Analysis search tool, entering directory numbers as usual, and party number where a lot/control number will go. Can I get an Analysis Certificate even if my item has expired? Yes. Although we periodically remove Analysis Certificates for site maintenance purposes, we typically keep them available far beyond the product's shelf life. Why would the analysis certificate in the search results say No product name found? There are certificates of analysis that correspond to products that are either discontinued or simply not available on the website. In such situations, the Certificate of Analysis is available for download, but other product details, such as the product name, are not. Why does it say Not available for the certificate of analysis listed in the search results? In this case, you entered the actual directory number and lot/control number, and we found the Certificate of Analysis. However, for some reason, the file itself is not available. Please use the query form here or contact your local Bio-Rad representative so we can send you a Certificate of Analysis Please enter your email address in the right way введите свой адрес электронной почты.
