have complete casting, ways to buff their melee, and generally end up with similar base fighting traits to a variety of multi-class. Wise Divine, Ruby Knight Vindicator of 9 Swords can support many possible combinations. IIRC, we had swords using the unarmed type going RKV and holy fist - he had 5 classes in Level 2 each in level 10 characters. So many base stacked save bonuses... That's right, that's the class I was thinking about. Ruby Knight Vindicator, excuse me since my original have noticed 2 things: 1st - party composition (at this time) 1. Braddin 2. Eldrich Knight 3. No Decision 4. My undecided - I think now that I'd try out Rogue Man Martial 2/Cloistered Spiritual X. Then go to the PRC with at least 6 skill points and advance my spelling, Rogue Martial is awarded for feats (using them all to combat related feats). Spiritual Cloistered for endowing knowledge (and hopefully endowing travel as well), I have to read diet guides DMs, they are not standard. RKV will definitely look at. Taking 2 flaws, human and MR rewards me fighting casting, improved initiative, power attack, and Cleave to be level 1. 2 - Production ability scores will be generated using 2d4 +10 :YEAH!: I definitely won't have to worry about being too crazy thanks for the response. Keep ideas flowing anyway. You refer to divine and confidential, but for Psi the llythi killer is really strong. For 3.0 Hospitaller is really good on the divine side. Duskblade is not And it doesn't require a few categories. As far as ever the easiest Gish low operation, it's worth mentioning. Psychological warrior is another big Gish class. Yes, it's psychological, but that can be reffluffed and if you add a few (two, I think) monk levels and Talashtora masterpieces you're very good mid-Operation Gish for higher op Arcane Gishes, the Abjurant-class hero credits the top tier. This is in every construction of my gish. My personal favorite is Paladin2/Sorcerer4/Spellsword1/Abjurant Champion5/Sacred Exorcist8. It's making high optimizations, but it's incredibly fun and flavoring. It's been a while since I made one of them but started out as a wizard for skills, take on most of the 2 levels of the fighter, and then take a level of word spell from the perfect warrior, (+1 Bob, +1 Arcane Custer, -10% Broke Secret Spell) to make the secret knight of DMG as filler, but take the Abjurant Hero (full mage) full Bob Custer, other benies 5 levels, as a priority. This jazz band, with the right build, can get level 9 spells, complete 4 iterative attacks, and on mithril plates with twilight boosts and Thistedown from book A 0 defeat the spell. If needed I could put the level actually together, it's very old school CO making getting 1 PRC level will be set off ringing bells for some GMs. To get out there is an idea you might try the spiritual/visualization/sapphire hierarchy of the magic of Incarnum. You have the LN, but if you're heavy on spiritual (and it may be (say if you go to the scope of the law, the scope of the incarnum, the expansion of the spell, the midnight meta-mhagic path) to get into the prestige class with 3 spiritual levels and 1 of visualization)) it can reward a frenzied attack by combining spirit melds and spiritual spells, despite bab's low (and then use power attack later). Plus, it's dried with flavor. Another option (since you like skill) is to be a rogue/wizard/trickster confidential. tricky .
