The division boss locations

Named Bosses are the so-called elites, the strongest type of enemy you will encounter in tom Clancy's Division. Most of the time they are accompanied by other enemies, however, you want to focus the big fish with yellow health and armor bar - named. Farming these rare enemies is now one of the most effective and diversified ways to get new (named) items and Gear Sets as a drop guaranteed. Besides normal mining, they also drop the Phoenix Credits.Bullet King Bullet KingBecause concept around these special NPCs is not actually finished on the release of the game, the glitch allowed the players to farm them endlessly because there was no noticeable respawn cooling. Especially Bullet King, named enemy Rikers, became famous overnight and even got his own Wikipedia entry! Fortunately, the problem has been fixed and the 1.4 update introduced a working and really enjoyable free roaming experience. All named Boss PlacesThe rare mobs can be found in the Open World (also known as the Light Area; respawn every four hours) and in The Dark Area (respawn every 10 minutes), but are also seen in story missions like Joe Ferro, Head of Cleaners. The spawning locations of all named bosses are marked on the map below. Also, the direction of the arrows tells you whether they are in the underground (down) or at ground level (up) Manhattan.In case you still can't find them using the map, you can look at the following video to get an idea of the environment. Named bosses also spawn in West Side Pier, but they don't have fixed caviar seats. However, you should be able to find a lot of them on this side of the card, and just play in resistance horde mode where waves with bosses come every now and then. I've hit level 30 and is decent of gears and weapons, but I really want to make a set of classified gears. I've heard that open world bosses can give you classified and exotic gear, but I don't know the places of these bosses. If someone can send a link to a imigur or post such places, it would be greatly appreciated. Thx!
