Alleviate poverty in child exploitation, robust policy needed for minors and policy. The phenomenon of child exploitation and labor in India is a matter of concern for the government. Child labor is a significant issue that affects the economic and social development of children. It is estimated that millions of children in India are engaged in child labor, working in hazardous conditions.

The exploitation of children for economic gain is a violation of their rights and basic freedoms. The International Labor Organization (ILO) has defined child labor as any form of employment or work, which is not in the best interest of the child. This includes work that is hazardous, exploitative, or detrimental to their health and development.

The Indian government has implemented various policies and initiatives to address the issue of child labor. The National Child Labour Scheme (NCLS) is a government initiative that aims to reduce the incidence of child labor and improve the living conditions of children. The scheme focuses on providing alternate livelihoods to children engaged in child labor, educating them, and creating awareness about the harmful effects of child labor.

However, despite these efforts, the problem of child labor persists. The main factors contributing to child labor are poverty, lack of alternative income sources, and inadequate social and economic policies. The situation is particularly worst in rural areas where children are forced to work to support their families.

In conclusion, the issue of child labor requires a comprehensive approach involving policies, education, and social awareness. The government, along with international organizations and civil society, must work together to eliminate child labor and ensure the rights and well-being of children.
