CLEARPATH ANNOUNCES ACQUISITION BY L1BRE
Felice Gorordo Named President & CEO of L1BRE

MIAMI, FL - Clearpath™, a provider of simplified, online immigration filing solutions, announced today it has been acquired by L1BRE, LLC (L1BRE). Clearpath's chief executive Felice Gorordo will become L1BRE's President & CEO and will be based in Miami, Florida.

L1BRE is a solutions-based technology company transforming how citizens engage with communities. The Clearpath acquisition represents L1BRE's commitment to software solutions that empower users to engage with government more effectively, efficiently and securely. L1BRE was launched earlier this year by recognized technology leaders with unparalleled experience developing enterprise platforms in the homeland security, transportation, energy and financial sectors.

"In the homeland security sector, Clearpath's innovative solutions compliment L1BRE's commitment to transform how citizens connect and interact with public services," said Ramon Perez, Board member of L1BRE. "With his prestigious private and public sector leadership experience, we are honored to have Felice lead L1BRE in this new phase of growth and expansion."

Before joining Clearpath, Gorordo was appointed by President Barack Obama as one of fifteen White House Fellows for 2011-2012 and served in the White House Office of Public Engagement and Intergovernmental Affairs.

"We are very excited about joining L1BRE and combining resources to further Clearpath's mission to empower our users to more effectively engage with government," said new L1BRE CEO Felice Gorordo. "I am humbled to take on this new leadership role as we expand into new markets with cutting-edge technology solutions."

Prior to serving in the Obama White House, Gorordo led government sales and business development for Liberty Power Corp., the largest independent retail electric provider in the U.S. In the administration of President George W. Bush, Felice also served in various positions at the White House, and U.S. Departments of Commerce, State and Homeland Security. PODER Magazine has named Gorordo one of the "100 Poderosos" Most Influential Hispanics in the U.S., and he has been featured on CNN's "Young People Who Rock."

This acquisition will enable Clearpath to accelerate the company's long-term strategic plan through significant new investments in consumer markets and enterprise solutions. Clearpath will operate as a division of L1BRE while expanding its existing platform and operations.

About Clearpath

Clearpath is revolutionizing the confusing, costly and paper-based immigration filing process, just as TurboTax transformed tax filing. More than 100 million immigration forms are filed each year in the U.S., with any one person filing multiple forms over a number of years as his or her status changes. Clearpath's patented software was developed by former U.S. immigration agency leaders who understand how to navigate the government's complex system. Our simple online solution offers all the most requested forms, including citizenship, deferred action for childhood arrivals, H1-B visa, work authorization, green card, etc. Using plain language, Clearpath walks a user, step-by-step, through each form, checking data in real time for potential errors and compliance. Clearpath's solution is easy, secure and affordable, costing roughly one-tenth of the fees charged by lawyers. This venture-backed technology company was founded by former heads of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). For more information, please visit www.myclearpath.com.
