Mysteries of life or death... Lies of life or death... The truths of life or death... Death or life... Class trial ... - Kaede Akamatsu, Danganronpa V3: Killing Harmony Class Trials (学級裁判 Gakcchio Saiban) are the final act of each chapter in Danganronpa V3: Killing Harmony. Students argue among themselves, using evidence gathered during the investigation phase to determine the culprit in each chapter. Debates take place in the courtroom and consist of several stages of debates and mini-games. The trial ends when the perpetrator - known as Blackened - is revealed and eventually executed. This page serves as an overview and guide to the test class in Danganronpa V3: Killing Harmony. See the home page of the Test class for a more general review of test class in all Danganronpa games. Mini-games Apart from non-stop debates and closing arguments, Danganronpa V3: Killing Harmony has 6 major mini-games: Gambit Hangman Ver 3.0, Argument Armament, Debate Scrum, Mind Mine, Psyche Taxi, and Panic Debate. Non-stop debate: Lying during a non-stop debate, if you hold a button to shoot the bullet truth, you can change it to Lie Bullet instead. By shooting Lie Bullet in a weak spot, you can perform perjury to refute statements that are not really incompatible. Each test has one Nonstop Debate where lies are required and 0 to 2 non-stop debates that can be completed both normally and through lies. Completing such a non-stop debate with a lie will lead to a back route. Hangman's Gambit Ver. 3.0 Choose the right letters among the floating on the screen to present the answer to a specific question. If you focus your energy you can illuminate the center of the screen, making it easier to identify floating letters. However, some letters are hidden by shadows. You will need to rely on the light that sometimes appears to reveal them. The Argument Arming Argument Is a One-on-One Debate against an angry opponent who wears armor from his own arguments and theories and who refuses to listen to your reasoning. To win Arguments, you have to knock down your opponent's statements while maintaining the rhythm of the debate. Only then will you pierce their armor and draw a conclusion. The Scrum A Debate Scrum debate takes place when Trial class members are divided between two views and cannot reach a consensus. Characters on both sides will make comments that relate to a particular topic, but these comments alone do not consensus reached. For each comment made by the opposite side, you must identify the key topic of the comment and compare it to a similar comment made by your side. The purpose of the Scrum debate is to match all the comments in one round of the debate. During the Scrum debate, a key topic that appears in the comments of both parties will be displayed at the bottom of the screen. This key topic will always be visible when your party makes your comments, but it will be hidden to the opposite side. It is best to read each opponent's comments first and then try to identify the key theme of each comment. Mind Mine From time to time, questions will arise that can only be answered by clearing away all unnecessary clutter, so that the truth can be revealed. In Mind Mine, color blocks will cover images that represent the correct answer to a specific question. By selecting two or more blocks of the same color, you can erase them in one fell swoop. When blocks are removed, the adjacent blocks will also change color. Use changing colors to your advantage to clear the blocks and reveal the answer. If there's only one block left, you can mine it several times to make it disappear, but you'll be punished for it. Psyche Taxi drive along a lonely section of the road, picking up words and phrases to outline the questions asked in a particular case. After successfully completing the question, you must choose the right answer for further progress. Take the woman holding the correct answer to make her a passenger and continue driving. Mass Panic Debates in Mass Panic Debates, you have to find inconsistencies in the statements of students as they all shout at each other. Although similar to The Nonstop Debate, because so many characters speak at once, the screen becomes cluttered with words and voices, making it more difficult to find inconsistencies. The rebuttal showdown is a head-to-head debate against one opponent where you have to cut through their statements with a sword. The mood of the debate determines the range of motion to aim the sword, and successful reductions shift it in your favor, increasing the range while the misses cause a debate to shift in your opponent's favor and limit your range. When a contradiction appears, you can cut through it with a modified bullet of truth called the Sword of Truth. The promotional video BGM Multiple Choice Kaede must have hid it there ... That's the only explanation. Backpack Argument Armament Do You Know What I Tried to Do? KILLTHEM! MASTERMIND's closing argument all started two days before, when Monocum gave us an additional motive. The deadline added to this game caused the crime. After the announcement, some of us decided to form a group to plan our Move. I had my own plan to find the mastermind, and someone offered to help me... At the time, I had no idea they would be the culprits. To expose the mastermind, the criminal and I installed hidden cameras in the library. There was a hidden door in the library with signs of use. We concluded that the mastermind would return there to release Monocum. The next day we asked Miur if she could change some cameras for our trap. Then we went to the warehouse to collect the necessary materials. All we needed was disposable cameras and a security sensor. But the perpetrator found something else there - the murder weapon. That's right. The shot put the ball down. They put the cameras as well as a shot in the backpack. Then, on the day of the expiration date, on the day of the murder... culprit, and I collected a modified camera from Miur and visited the library. Once there, we were looking for a room for perfect places to accommodate the cameras. But even then the criminal was preparing a murder. They started by removing the vent grille, and put it in the duct. Then, moved a bunch of books on top of the bookcase, pretending to organize them. They then placed open encyclopedias on the last bookcase. It seemed harmless enough, but in fact it was the way to kill! The offender also forged a hidden camera connected to a security sensor. I was responsible for setting up other cameras, but that's one... I didn't even notice their trick. They used duct tape to keep the flash function. After the cameras were installed, the perpetrator and I climbed the stairs to the first floor of the class. We followed the others and waited for the safety sensor to come together. During the feast, we saw Kaito and six other people go down to the basement. Rantaro was with them... The first victim. After watching that band enter the game room, I returned to class. With about one hour remaining, the security receiver I kept went. I assumed it was the mastermind, so I ran out of class into the library. I was in such a hurry that I left the criminal. Looking back at it now... It was the last chance to stop the murder. After I left, the offender took a shot to put the ball out of the backpack... and rolled it into the classroom vents. It's going to make a killing! Rantaro has moved the bookcase, initiates the receiver. Without his knowledge, a trap was created. First, a modified camera photographed Rantaro with a flash. Rantaro noticed the flash and went to the bookcase to examine the camera. The camera flash lured Rantaro straight into the path of the murder weapon! Shot by a criminal thrown into the vent rolled through the duct ... came out of the ventilation library, and continued rolling on top of the bookcase. Opening the ventilation grille and organizing the books was all to create a path. When normal the victim would have been warned by the noise... but the promotional video was masking the sound of the rolling shot. The shot continued to roll and then fell on Rantaro's head, killing him instantly. By the time we entered the room, the murder was over. I think... seeing Rantaro's body, the culprit probably thought... The mastermind is dead, the game is over, now we can all go home... But their wish did not come true... Because Rantaro wasn't the mastermind! It was murder... in an attempt to save all our lives. It's true. It's true behind your lies... Kaede Akamatsu, The Ultimate Pianist! KIRUMI'SGLOVES The victim's body was found this morning during an underwater escape by Law Gimiko. When we saw the piranhas in the tank, we thought that Gimiko's escape had failed. Of course, it was all part of the act. Gimiko's escape went well. But when Angie opened the curtain in front of the tank... we saw Ryoma, with piranhas swarming around it! Before any of us could react, the piranhas swallowed Roma's body. And all that was left was his bones and handcuffs, which he wore... This terrifying spectacle was the finishing touch to the offender's own perverted magic. The perpetrator entangled the time and place of the murder, involving Vimiko in the trial. In truth, the crime started last night, around 8:55 p.m. Preparing for the show in the gym, the criminal had a chance of loneliness. It was then that the perpetrator used a ladder to get to the piranha tank... and removed the glass lid to put inside the tank. They used it as a partition to force piranhas to one side of the tank. Then the criminal took the rope from the stage wing in the gym... And used the stairs again, this time to climb to the gym window. Once there, opened the window and tied one end of the rope to the window frame. The rope was thrown out the window, the window, Pool. These preparations were key to the elaborate plan of the perpetrator. At night, after midnight, the criminal asked Ryoma to meet in his lab. All the pieces were in place. The perpetrator was ready to kill. First, the offender knocked out Ryoma, probably hitting him from behind. Then they handcuffed the shower on Rhom's wrists... and put his head in a sink filled with water! Out of the water and the pain of drowning, Ryoma had to wake up and struggled. The perpetrator foresaw his resistance, so Ryoma was handcuffed. The fight left scratches on the cuffs and sink, but in the end, Ryoma succumbed. Roma was dead... but the criminal's plan has just begun. They removed the cable from the tennis net and hung it from the window facing the pool. And then, in the pool, they hooked up a wire and a rope from the gym window. They returned to the lab after having taken one last thing... Rubber inner tube ... they hung the pool tool bar. Back at the lab, the offender pulled out the cable, causing a rope. They pulled it out while the rope was tight and then tied it to the lab window frame. And so... The gym and lab windows were connected by one rope! After making hangers of sorts with another length of rope tied to the inner pipe ... they hung the inner tube on the rope connecting the windows. That's how the criminal created a rope that was used to move the body! Impressive premeditated murder. But the culprit made two decisive mistakes. The offender sat on the inner tube with Roma's body and slid towards the gym. With the height difference between the windows, they would have created quite some speed. In order not to crash into the window, the offender applied the brake. They used their own hand to grab the rope and slow down. This would cause a significant burn of the rope ... if the perpetrator wasn't wearing gloves. But because of friction, part of the glove fell off and fell into the pool. Despite this, the offender reached the window and put Roma's body in the pyranha tank. Glass not only kept the piranhas and body divided... he also kept the piranhas so close together, they hid the body. After that, all the perpetrator had to do was untie the rope and the inner tube... but that's when they made their second mistake. One end of the rope came out loose, and the inner tube fell into the pool. Thus, the perpetrator was forced to leave two key clues - the fabric and the inner tube. They were unable to get evidence because of the rule against bathing at night. And that's the whole story. I'm wrong, Kirumi Tojo, The Final Virgin! Korekiyo Singuji Multiple Choice Murder That Was An Accident... Murder Of Angie Yonaga Argument Armament You have no evidence thatCorekiyo is a murderer ... REMOVEDFLOORBOARD Let's look back at the first murder. It was late last night. The perpetrator was in an empty room on the 4th floor. The perpetrator was preparing a planned murder. To use the floorboard as a swing, they had to cut out the transverse element supporting it. The plan was to make the same training for all three empty rooms. This would distract suspicion from the perpetrator and the one who chose the room. To cut the cruciations, they needed a saw. I think they got one from the warehouse. They planned to cut the transverse parts in all three rooms. However, when the offender was working in the middle room, there was an unexpected... Angie came into this room and saw the perpetrator preparing him. She needed a fire for the ritual, and went to the room for a candle. At that point, the culprit had not finished the installation and was just cutting crosses. Angie may not have come to the conclusion that this was related to some kind of murder plan. But now that Angie saw it, the perpetrator couldn't use the swing trick. Any other person could have just given up. But not our culprit. The offender took the floorboards they loosened and hit the unsuspecting Angie in the head. The perpetrator did not want to give up according to his plan and had to improvise. They wrapped duct tape around Angie's injury to stop the bleeding. They then took her unconscious body and took her to a research lab. While she was unconscious, the perpetrator hurried to tie this loose end. But because they were in a hurry, they did the decisive oversight. They didn't notice that the duct tape was peeling off, and it was under Angie's body. Without this evidence we may never have found the criminal's trick. Transportation of necessary supplies, supplies, returned to Ultimate Art Lab... locked the front door from the inside... and took out the katana they brought from their own lab. They then stabbed Angie in the back of the head, eventually killing her. Then, to further confuse us, the perpetrator tried to make a closed secret. First they used a rope from the warehouse and hung four effigies upside down. There were two reasons for this. To suppress the room with an occult atmosphere... And the other was the key to locking the room. The criminal put a katana in a stuffed Cade near the back entrance... and twisted the effigy around to twist the rope. After a sufficient number of turns, the offender let go and headed for the back door. After the release the effigy began to rotate, and the golden leaf katana with it. Then the handle of the katana got into a sliding lock, locking the door. Difficult trick, but remember that the lock was so loose it moved at the slightest pinch. The offender would also have the opportunity to try it many times. After completion, the door was locked, but the duct tape was left behind. The culprit may have noticed this, but by that point it was too late. The room was sealed. They had no way to go back inside. Then, this morning, we opened the room and found Angie's body... But the culprit was not finished. They wanted another murder. To do this, they manipulated us into doing the session! Of the three empty rooms, the average was chosen for the session. Kocichi invited me to take Kibo's place in the session. Tenko volunteered to become a medium. But... she never thought it would lead to her being killed. To perform the session, the criminal claimed that they needed something for Tenko ... The little stone that Gimiko brought from the yard. Tenko, at the request of the criminal, bowed her head until she touched the stone. This position played an important role in making the killing go as planned. Then Kocichi and I placed an iron cage over Tenko in the middle of a magic circle. The perpetrator then volunteered to drape a white cloth over the iron cage. We didn't realize it at the time, but it was a deliberate decision by the perpetrator. They had to establish the murder weapon that was used to kill Tenko. While they covered the cage with a cloth, they secretly placed a sickle. Finally, we put a wooden statue on a cage in four. The perpetrator used the weight of the statue to keep the murder weapon in place. After the preparation was completed, we started the session. In total darkness, each of us stood in the same corner and sang the song The Caged Child. When the song was over, the soul of the dead was to enter the medium... But our criminal had another plan to commit murder in the dark. Immediately after we started singing, the criminal began to get wet in the direction of Tenko. It would be quite difficult to do in total darkness, but our culprit did. They used magic circle lines drawn with salt. The culprit felt for salt and used it to guide them forward. And when the criminal reached the center of the circle... they found a floorboard that had its crosspiece cut off the night before... Then lifted his leg and stomped down the floorboard! The floorboard rose like a swing ... and pushed Tenko's body up to the ceiling of the cage. Tenko was stabbed in the back of the head on top of the cage. She was killed right in front of our eyes, and we didn't even see him! After committing the crime, the perpetrator followed salt back to his corner... finished the ritual, and we lit candles. We followed the instructions of the offender and removed the equipment used for the session..... and found Tenko's body. And while we were all focused on the body, the culprit took the sickle..... and dropped it under the floor through a hole in the corner of the room. Ironically... the last step of the murder was unwittingly carried out by us. The perpetrator was planning a murder so we could inadvertently destroy some of the evidence. This proof was a magic circle that the perpetrator used to navigate in the dark. However, the perpetrator did not know that Kibo had taken the picture. He really saved us. Without it, we wouldn't know what changes were made to the circle. But now we know for sure. And we know that the culprit drew a magic circle... Korekiyo Singuji, the ultimate anthropologist! We have a solid alibi! For a few choice Reasons Why Kocichi can't be the culprit... He couldn't have killed Miur to identify the man who is the only person who could have committed this murder? Gonta Gokuhara Argument Armament There's no way to leave mansion off the roof! TOILET PAPERDISCOVEREDOUTSIDE OFTHE MANSION Spot Selection Where did the perpetrator tie the paper to come down from the roof? The binoculars case began last night. After we saw Miur, we all entered the Virtual World. To log on, you have to connect memory and consciousness cords into the device. So we all plugged these cords into our helmets and entered the virtual world. But the criminal accidentally plugged his cords into the wrong ports. Because of this, there was a communication error between the brain of the criminal and his avatar ... As a result, the criminal will forget everything that happened in the virtual world. It's possible... that it also affected the identity of their avatar. Because I... I can't believe that someone so kind can commit murder... But... we had no idea this mistake even happened. So we all logged in one by one. Meanwhile, Miur was the last person to log in. She changed the killing game simulator so she could reach a specific goal. After Miur confirmed that we all entered, she took out a bottle of poison..... and put it on Kocichi's seat. It was made to make it look like Kocichi was killed by poison when we got back. Yes... The reason Miur changed the simulator and brought us into the virtual world ... was to kill Kociki in the virtual world, but pretend that he died in the real world! After we all logged in, Miur explained the world to us. Use the phone salon to go out, objects indestructible, your avatars use all five senses..... She also explained the map of the virtual world in the hallway of the mansion. But her explanation was deliberately false. She wanted us to misunderstand the world. However... one of us could see through her scheme. The same man Miur tried to kill... Coquity, Kocichi was going to use Miur's plan against her and was plotting her murder! But Kociki wouldn't do it himself. He used patsy to be the culprit in this case. Kociki was closely associated with the motive... so I don't know why the perpetrator But it seems as if, right right login when Kocichi and the culprit went outside ... they've already worked together to carry out the murder. Eventually, we met with Kociki and crossed the river to the chapel. Miur had us split to try to find some secret of the outside world. Kaito, Kocichi, Gonta, Tsumugi and I explored the mansion while Maki, Gimiko, Kibo, and Miur explored the chapel. Separating us was also part of Miur's plan. In the chapel, Miur told Maki that she was going to look around outside. She was chasing our group while we were on our way to the mansion. As soon as she made sure we were opposite, she dropped the bridge into the river. It was to deceive us into thinking that the river had separated the mansion and the chapel. At the time we didn't think anything of it... It was just another one of Miur's pranks. That's why we continued the original plan to find the secret of the outside world. We went to the mansion and broke up to find the evidence. Kociki searched the salon. Kaito searched the roof. Tsumegi searched the dining room. I searched the kitchen. And finally, the criminal was searched outside the mansion! Around the same time Miur headed for the wall, which was on the side of the chapel. She went through the wall and headed to the mansion to kill Kocichi. You see, the wall was a special wall that Miur added herself. This wall has been programmed so that only objects can pass through..... and Miur changed the settings of her avatar from human to object. It was a hidden route that she had prepared for herself. She set up a wall that only she could pass through! Miur went to the mansion, but Tsumugi saw her on the way... When she entered the mansion, she pulled out her cell phone. She didn't tell us there was another way to get out of the house to get out of the house. She then said the name on the phone that forced the man out of the system. It was Kaito who was on the roof at the time. The same roof where Kocichi and Miur were going to meet. Having Kaito search the roof and then get him to go out..... she made him look the most suspicious. But her plan didn't go smoothly. Kociki was waiting on the roof with the perpetrator, and the toilet paper killed Miur. While Miur was distracted by Kocichi, the criminal crept up behind... And used toilet paper from the bathroom of the mansion to strangle Miur. This is only possible because objects in the virtual world are indestructible. Miur's avatar was strangled to death, and the shock killed Miur in the real world. After the murder, Kocichi left the cleanup to the criminal and left the roof. He probably returned to the salon as soon as he was able to avoid suspicion. The offender then took the grille out of the pantry..... and put Miur's body on top, along with a hammer and a cell phone. The offender grabbed the grille over the railing and forcefully slid it down the roof. With a body on the from it the lattice became a makeshift sled and flew off the roof. He went through a wall that only objects could pass before crashing into the chapel. It was a rumbling that Kibo heard in the chapel, and we heard in the mansion. The Mou Wall concealed the fact that the mansion and the chapel were actually next to each other. That's why Tsumugi and I were able to hear the accident from the mansion! As a last step, the perpetrator had to get off the roof. Because we were in the mansion, they couldn't take the stairs they would have seen. So they used toilet paper again to escape the roof. They hung toilet paper from binoculars on the roof..... and used it as a rope to go down. After the offender was safely on the ground, they pulled out on toilet paper to retrieve it. They would have returned him to the bathroom, but they bumped into us as we were leaving the mansion. In a panic, the offender threw toilet paper somewhere nearby. Without this little mistake ... we may never have solved this case because the culprit doesn't remember. It's the truth you forgot! Gonta Gokuhara, entomologist! VICTIM HELPED Identify the person who is in Kaito Momota Argument Armament I saw Kocichi drink antidote! Antidote! DRINKTHEANTIDOTE Let's consider the trick that Kocichi and the criminal created together... Last night, Kibo saw Gimiko from the window of his lab. She was carrying a black box and heading to the Exisal hangar. When she got to the hangar, she handed the case over to someone through the bathroom window. That someone... is the culprit of this case! Locked in the bathroom, the offender asked Gimiko to bring them a certain weapon. A disassembled crossbow from Maki's lab. The offender was going to use a crossbow to challenge Kocichi in the fight. Some time passed, and Maki walked to the hangar. She was going to the hangar to get to Kocichi and save the criminal in the bathroom. However, the hangar had an electric barrier preventing it from entering. Luckily for her, she had an Electrohammer to get around the barrier... In a way. She used her Electrohammer to disable Exisal and climb inside. She knew exisals could get around the barrier... so she got inside one! Around the same time, the perpetrator and Kocichi began their confrontation. While Kocichi was checking them, the perpetrator ambushed him with a crossbow. But the perpetrator wasn't going to kill Kocichi, they just wanted to turn him off. That's why the perpetrator took aim at Kocichi's right hand. If they really wanted to kill him, they would have shot him in his vital. Kocichi staggered from the arrow, and the offender immediately pounced on him. He didn't want Kocichi to be able to call Exisal with a remote control. While they were fighting, something happened that took them both by surprise. The hangar shutter opened, and Exisal went inside! Coquity definitely didn't expect Exisal to interrupt them. He pulled out his remote control in an attempt to control Exisal... But Maki jumped out of the cockpit and shot Kocichi with a crossbow. The arrow hit Kocichi right in the back. And it wasn't an ordinary shot... The tip was covered in deadly poison from my lab called Strike-9 Poison. The poison kills slowly. It seems that Maki wanted Kocichi to confess before his death. But even with the poison in his veins, Kocichi continued to twist his lies. When she had had enough, Mackie tried to kill him with another poisoned arrow... but this time Mackie was taken by surprise. Laki's lie doesn't turn black, the perpetrator used his body to shield Kocichi. A poisonous arrow hit the offender's left hand. Maki remembered that there was an antidote in my lab, and he immediately ran after him. The poison Strike-9 slowly circulated through their systems, and soon killed them both. But in this desperate situation, Kocichi came up with a clever lie. He included this unforeseen event in his plan to help him win the killing game! Or, should I say ... help him defeat Monocum. That was Kocichi's true goal. That's why he claimed to be the mastermind. Thinking fast, close the shutter so that Maki could not re-enter the hangar. So Kocichi's last lie was on the move. When Maki came back with an antidote, she couldn't go back to the hangar... so she went to the hangar bathroom and handed the antidote through the window. But after the offender was given an antidote, Kocichi immediately grabbed him. Kocichi drank the whole antidote while the perpetrator and Maki watched in horror. Mackie must have panicked, thinking the only antidote was gone. She believed the perpetrator would die from his own poisoned arrow. But it was another Kocuchi lie. He just pretended to drink the antidote. Maki desperately tried to break into the hangar, even cutting the control panel. But she couldn't get the shutter to open again. Defeated, she had no choice but to leave. After Maki left, Coquity pulled out another weapon. An electrobomb that can disable communication devices within hours. Kocichi's plan was to use an electric bomb to dislodge Monocum's surveillance cameras. That's why he instructed Miur to make bombs in the first place. After the explosion of the electrobomb, Kociki forced the offender to drink an antidote. In exchange for the antidote, Kociki asked the perpetrator to cooperate with his plan. Kocichi had to work with the perpetrator to execute his final lie. Under normal circumstances, the culprit would never have agreed to such a plan... But because the perpetrator owed him the lie to save their lives, they agreed to Kociki's request. The request is a generous term. It was more like blackmail. In any case, they are now working together as accomplices to a crazy plan. There was a lot to prepare for, and not much time. They had to work fast. If Kocichi had died of Strike-9 poison, the whole plan would have been destroyed. After making a scene in the bathroom, the perpetrator dragged Kocichi to the hydraulic press. This is how a napkin picture of blood stains from the bathroom in the press was created. Kocichi, supported by the perpetrator, stood in front of the press conference panel. Two of them were finally ready to execute insane lies! While Kocichi was installing a video camera near the hydraulic press control panel... the culprit put his face up inside the press, draping his coat over his shoulders. Kociki then activated the press and the camera recording button at the same time... The hydraulic press came down slowly, everyone caught on film for us to see. Normally, the security feature would work, but Electrobomb turned it off. The press is lower and lower, and just as the perpetrator has disappeared from sight ... Kociki pressed the Force Stop button and the camera pause button at the same time. The two then swapped ... and also swapped roles. Culprit... And the victim. The future victim was our culprit and began to And cameras. Kocichi saved the life of the criminal, because his trick required their cooperation. He wanted to win a murderous game... even if it meant dying yourself! So, Kocichi was crushed by the press, and it was all caught on video. The offender's left sleeve was hanging from the press, making us think he was a victim. Now alone, the culprit has assembled a video camera ... and tore the cord of the hydraulic press, so that it could never be lifted again. This would make it impossible for us to determine the identity of the crushed body. But there was another reason why the victim was killed in this way... It's the obfuscation cause of death that makes the case that much harder to solve. All this was part of Kocichi's plan to create a murder that even Monocum could not understand! With the press turned off, the offender returned to the bathroom to wash away Kocichi's clothes. Finally, they climbed inside Exisal to hide... and waited with a breathless breath. And now they're in this court, pretending to be Cocco. They try to deceive Monocum to defeat the true mastermind! ... And that's it. It's an unidentified play by the Cocaine offender. Motherkuma's video printing system identifies the person who is the mastermind? Tsumagi Shirogane With this new proof ... Let's look back at Rantaro's murder. On the night of the incident, Cade and I were in a first-floor classroom. We were waiting for the mastermind to trigger the trap we set in the library. Around the same time there were four people in the dining room... including the mastermind. The mastermind was probably annoyed that there had been no murders yet. After the motive was given, they knew that Kaede was planning something... But the mastermind wanted insurance. If necessary, they will come to action. The inspiration apologized from the dining room and went to the bathroom. And from there, to a hidden room in the library that only the mastermind can enter. And there... they waited. Less than an hour before the expiration date, Rantaro moved the library's bookcase..... which went to the receiver I was holding. It all happened the way we determined in the first test... expect at the end ... I ran out of the room and Kaede rolled a shot to put the ball in the air vents. At the same time, Rantaro was lured by a flash of Kaede's hidden camera set. He unwittingly stepped straight into the path of the shot. A shot rolled down the path Kaede did and then ... fell right on Rantaro's head, killing him instantly... Or so we thought. Turns out that was exactly what the mastermind wanted us to believe. In fact, the plan to kill Cade was very different. A shot to put the ball that Kaede rolled didn't really hit Rantaro ... He must have been surprised to see a shot put the ball fall out of nowhere like this. But his fate was sealed. The mastermind saw that Cade's plan had failed, and intervened to finish the job. The mastermind jumped out of the hidden room and attacked Rantaro from behind! And in their hands the real murder weapon - their own shot put ball. Rantaro was killed not by Cade's shot, but by the mastermind. The mastermind took Kaede's shot and left their shot to put the ball on the scene. They also looted Survivor Perk Monopad from Rantaro's body. These things in hand, they retreated back into the hidden room. I remember seeing the bookcase close just as Cade and I got there.

The mastermind probably just finished his crime. And so, the real truth was completely hidden from us. We went to the class court and reached the truth that Kaede was the culprit. But this truth was distorted by the mastermind! After the murder, the mastermind left the stolen Monopad on the In a hidden room..... and threw a shot at Kaede to put the ball in the trash. A little sloppy on their part ... not to get rid of all the evidence. They probably believed that no one would ever go into this room. But we did. Their crime is complete, the mastermind is back through a hidden passage. The passage led from the hidden room all the way to... Girl bathroom on the ground floor! While the mastermind pretended to use the girls bathroom they actually used a hidden passage. That's how they moved without being seen.
