I have a git repo, that I want to add a few small scripts to before I push the repo up to a remote server. These scripts I would like to run as an atom shell script. However, I can't figure out how to run the script from my terminal. I've tried: > atom. > atom/scripts/myScript I've also tried: > #!/bin/sh > git add. > git commit -m 'Script Added' > git push I've also tried doing: > atom /Users/joshua/scripts/myScript A: Atom uses zsh for most of its scripts. So it should work with ./scriptname.sh. Just execute the script normally. Atom will call the script/scriptname.sh when the shell is set to zsh. But when you execute a script in a terminal, the shell is set to /bin/sh. In this case, Atom runs your script using sh, which will not invoke zsh. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that about 50% of children and adolescents with chronic medical conditions fail to complete the required annual physical examination. The following Year is committed to partnering with pediatric primary care clinics to improve pediatric care, clinical outcomes, health outcomes, patient satisfaction and costs. Several clinical staff have taken advantage of the SIMPLE clinical quality improvement method to make recommendations to improve care.
