Then God said: May there be light, and there was light. Genesis 1:1 in other translations of John 3:16 Yes, God loved the world so much that he gave his only Son that one who believes in him may not die, but may have eternal life. John 3:16 in other translations of the New American Bible (NAB) is an English translation of the Bible first published in 1970. The revised NAB of 1986 is the basis of the revised Lectionary, and it is the only translation approved for use at Mass in the Roman Catholic dioceses of the United States and the Philippines, and the first edition of 1970 is also an approved translation of the Bible by the Episcopal Church in the United States. Originally, based on the Bible of the Brotherhood, a translation of Woolgate by the Brotherhood of Christian Doctrine, the project moved on to the translation of original biblical languages in response to Pope Pius' 1943 encyclical Divino afflante Spiritu. The translation was carried out in stages by members of the Catholic Bible Association of America (CBA) from original languages critically using all ancient sources (as the headline pages of the state). These efforts eventually became the New American Bible in accordance with the liturgical principles and reforms of the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965). First edition - NAB Text of the first edition of the New American Bible consists of: The New Testament is directly translated from Greek, appearing in portions since 1964 and completed in 1970. The Old Testament (except Genesis): the text of the Bible of the Brotherhood, translated in stages between 1952 and 1969 from original languages, with minor changes in text and notes in 1970. Genesis, recently translated from Hebrew in 1970, replacing Translated. Writing the correct names found in this edition departs from those found in old Catholic biblical versions such as Douay, and instead accepts those commonly found in Protestant Bibles. Notes in many places represent 20th century theories still at present, for example the source and different sources for pentateuch. Catholic scholars translated this version in collaboration with representatives of other Christian denominations. Second edition: RNAB As for the revised new American Bible (RNAB) of 1986, a compromise was reached: while traditional phraseology, absent in the 1970 edition, was restored to the New Testament, several unconventional, gender-neutral words were included. The New Testament was almost entirely revised, and bore a much closer resemblance to the Brotherhood's version of 1941, as opposed to the much more perrifrasic New Testament NAB of 1970. The translation of the Old Testament remained unchanged. Third edition: RNAB In 1991, the Book of Psalms was amended to include a broad gender-neutral language. Controversy arose because of its use of vertical gender-neutral language, i.e. for God and Christ, and some use of horizontal gender-neutral language, i.e. human beings, or whether they were instead of a man or him. This modified Book of Psalms was rejected for liturgical use. The only difference between 1986-90 RNAB and 1991-2011 RNAB is the Book of Psalms. The other 72 books are identical. Fourth edition: NABRE Main Article: The New American Bible Revised Edition In 1994 began work to revise the Old Testament. Since the revised Book of Psalms was rejected for liturgical use in 1991, the Committee of the Holy See and bishops has revised the text again for use in the Latin-ceremonial Catholic liturgy in 2000, and this revised text has become one used in the doctrines of the Catholic Church in the United States. The Holy See has agreed to some use of gender-neutral language, such as when she speaks of a person of unknown sex, making a person instead of a human being, but rejects any change associated with God or Christ. The Congregation for Divine Worship and Discipline of the Sacrament issued the instructions of Liturgiam Authenticam on May 7, 2001 in Rome. In 2002, the Old Testament, with the exception of the Book of Psalms, was completed and sent to the Special Committee of Bishops of the United States to determine whether it was a suitable Catholic translation. Another revision of the Book of Psalms was completed in June 2003, but it was rejected by the 1991 Book of Psalms. It agreed to the revised revised Psalter instead, which the Holy See approved and which replaced the revised NAB Psalter for lectionaries for Mass in the United States. The Psalms were revised again in 2008 and sent to the Bishops' Committee on Divine Worship, but also rejected in favor of the revised Psalm Grail. The final review of NAB Psalter was carried out using suggestions that the Special Committee had checked and more strictly comply with Liturgiam Authenticam. In January 2011, it was announced that the fourth edition of NAB would be published on March 9 of the same year. This latest text, entitled The New American Bible, Revised Edition (NABRE), being the fourth edition of NAB, includes the recently revised Old Testament and its Book of Psalms, as well as the revised New Testament of the second edition. While NABRE is redefining NAB towards greater compliance with Liturgiam Authenticam, no announcement has been made of the use of NABRE for lectionary in the United States. Future editions of NAB In 2012, USCCB announced a plan to revise the New Testament New American Bible Revised Edition so that a single version could be used for individual prayer, catechism and liturgy. After they developed the plan and budget of the revision project, the work began in 2013 with the creation of an editorial board, consisting of five people from the Catholic Bible Association (CBA). The editorial board consists of the following persons: Harold Attridge Christopher Ciccarino Mary Healy Felix Just, SJ Edward Mazich Donald Troutman (Adviser) Mary Elizabeth Sperry (USCCB Personnel) Review is currently underway and, following the necessary approvals from the bishops and the Vatican, is expected to be completed by 2025.
