It tells the story of a 24-year-old girl named Veronica, who apparently had everything in life, but she decides to wash herself, realizing that she has become monotonous. Verinica seems to have everything any young woman her age can wish for: visit hot spots, go out with attractive guys, she loves her family; However, he is not happy. Something's missing in his life. So on the morning of November 11, 1997, Veronica decides to die. After failing in a suicide attempt and after spending two weeks in intensive care, her family decides to place her in a psychiatric hospital, where when she wakes up a psychiatrist informs her that because of her failed suicide attempt she ends up with heart problems, such a problem causes her to have a few days to live in which she learns many things, meets new friends, and even falls in love in anticipation of death. Veronica discovers feelings and emotions that she never allowed Hes to experience, such as hatred, fear, curiosity, love, discovers her own sexuality and true desires to live. Her experiences gradually lead her to the revelation that every second of her existence is a choice between life and death. The book is based in part on Coelho's experience in a psychiatric hospital, see a biography of Juan Arias Confessions of a Pilgrim. The argument in this book, Paulo Coelho tells the experience of a young woman, Veronica, born in Slovenia, a lonely, beautiful and intelligent 24-year-old girl who seems to have it all. However, in the depth of the end, she is not happy, she thinks that she did not live everything that can be lived for fear of handing out their parents. He believed that as a teenager he was too young to make his own decisions, and in adulthood he realized that she was too old to try to change her life. Despite the fact that there was more and more, one morning in November, Veronica; decides to die. She seeks to end her life by taking an overdose of painkillers, but not in an attempt and ends up waking up in a very strange place that turns out to be a shelter for Villete, a psychiatric hospital. It's confusing Veronica. After Days, Veronica lets you know that she is alive, talking to her doctor, and she informs her that she has serious health problems, because with her suicide attempt she has caused irreversible and irreparable damage to her heart, so she has a few days to live. Dreams and fantasies. Aspiration and death. Madness and passion. On her way to death, Veronica experiences new pleasures and finds a new meaning in life, a feeling that has remained hidden from her ever since, when it may be too late to retreat.
