While the Christian calendar is very much in practice on work/business/professional fronts when it comes to spirituality or faith when it comes to fairs and festivals when it comes to identifying favorable days and holy schedules, gujarati's calendar follows. Gujarati's calendar begins the day after Diwali. The month of Gujarati begins in Kartak, followed by Magshar, Posh, Maha, Fagan, Chaitra, Vaishah, Jet, Ashadh, Shrvan, Bhadarvo and Aaso. The days in the Gujarati calendar are pronounced as Monday and Somvar, Tuesday and Mangalvaar, Wednesday - Budhwaar, Thursday - Guruvaar, Friday - Shukravaar, Saturday - Shanivaar and Sunday - Ravivaar. In general there are three seasons in India that are winter, summer and monsoon. They are, respectively, called Shiaalo, Unaalo and Chomaasu in gujarati. However there are sub seasons too in each season. These are Vasant (spring), Grisma (summer), Varsha (monsoon), Charad (autumn), Hemant (pre-winter) and Shishir (winter). According to the Gujarati calendar, the months of Chaitra and Vaishah are considered wasant or spring. Similar Jet and Ashad are months of Grisma or Summer. Shravana and Bhadarvo and Varsha or Monsoon. Aso and Kartak and Charad or Autumn. Magshar and Posh means Hemant or before winter and Maha and Fagan means Shishir or Winter. Gujarati's calendar, Vikram Samwat, is 56 years ahead of the Christian calendar. This means that if according to the Christian calendar it is 2015, then in the Gujarati calendar it will be considered as 2015-562071. The lunar calendar of Vikram Samwat was founded by Emperor Vikramaditya Ujain after the victory over Shaka in 56 BC (To calculate the current Christian year, 57 years should be deducted from the Indian year, if the date between the beginning of the Indian year and the end of the western year, i.e. Between Kartak sud 1 and 31 December. If the date falls between the beginning of the western year and the end of the Indian year, i.e. between January 1 and Aso vad 30, then only 56 years should be deducted.) The Gujarati Calendar Vikram Samwat uses a sunny year, but divides it into 12 lunar months, each of which consists of 29 days 12 hours 44 minutes and 3 seconds. All together the lunar year 354 days 8 hours 48 minutes and 36 seconds. To fix the lunar months in a sunny year (because 60 sunny months and 62 lunar months) there is a practice of adding additional called Adhik Mahino or Purushottam Maas at intervals of 30 months or, say, two and a half years. In Gujarati Hindu Vikram Samwat Calendar seasons according to the sun, months according to the moon and days according to the sun and moon. Lunar days or can have different lengths. Not only that, but sometimes the go down or once two continuous days are shared by the same tithi. This is because in the Gujarati calendar the days are calculated using the longitudinal angle difference between the position of the sun and the moon. The difference between Gujarati Vikram Samwat Calendar Year and northern Indian Vikram Samwat Calendar year is that that while the Gujarati Calendar Year Vikram Samwat begins with the first day after the new moon in the month of Kartak (the day after Diwali is usually in October / November in the popular calendar), in the northern Indian parts of the same Vikram Samvat calendar begins with the first day after the new moon in the month on the other hand, in Nepal, where Vikram Samwat is the official calendar, the new year begins in mid-April.
