JERSEY CITY, N.J. - A woman ran a massage parlor that was secretly a brothel right across the street from the Hudson County courthouse on Newark Avenue, Hudson County prosecutor charges. Elizabeth C. Golden, pictured above, was arrested and charged with promoting prostitution and engaging in prostitution. Last Tuesday, October 2, an agent with the district attorney created a sting at golden Sakura Spa, located on the second floor of 588 Newark Avenue in Jersey City, just across the street from the Hudson County courthouse complex. The undercover detective was in talks with Golden about exchanging money for a sexual act, said District Attorney Esther Sores. After the negotiations were completed, Golden was taken into custody and charged with prostitution. Golden, 50, was the only passenger at the facility at the time of her arrest. She will appear for the first time on these charges at the Central Court on October 23. THE CJP Courthouse is located on the ground floor of the Hudson County Administration Building at 595 Newark Avenue in Jersey City. The district attorney's office also seized clients' ledgers, website publications and financial records from the spa, as well as $1,200 in U.S. currency during the raid. The massage parlor is currently closed due to violations by the Jersey City authorities. Jersey City Police Department - Alcoholic Beverage Control also responded and issued violations to open containers of alcohol present in the business. The Jersey City Department of Health has issued several violations of the health code. Saures says Golden owns the spa. She also lived in a massage parlor, authorities said. Haircuts, nail appointments, and tattoos aren't the only things returning to New Jersey later this month as the state takes its next steps toward resuming from coronavirus locking orders.Gov. Phil Murphy on Friday unveiled a number of other personal care businesses that may also be working again in the state starting June 22, along with hairdressers, hairdressers, and salon tattoos. The list now includes beauty shops, day spas - although not including saunas, steam rooms or common bathing areas - massage parlours, tanning beds, wicker electrology shops and medical spas that perform exclusively and cosmetic cosmetic Procedures. Everyone will have restrictions. Murphy said the state consumer affairs department will issue safety standards and protocols that these businesses must comply with. This will include first-order, pre-screening and temperature services for employees and customers, as well as employees staying at least six feet away from patrons unless they are separated by physical barriers. Murphy also said that everyone inside the personal care business should wear face cover at all times if a customer receives a service that requires them to remove it. If that happens, service providers must not only wear a mask, but also use a shield, glasses or desk shield to provide additional protection, the governor said during his daily coronavirus briefing in Trenton.Salons have been closed since March 19, when Murphy was deploying sweeping statewide blocking orders to combat COVID-19 in New Jersey, a state with the second-highest death and incidents among U.S. states. But with the state's garden coronavirus numbers declining and the state's economy struggling, the governor has been slowly easing those restrictions in recent weeks. New Jersey's second opening phase officially begins on Monday - when outdoor dining will be allowed and inconsequential businesses can welcome customers back inside, at 50% capacity. In addition, kindergartens may reopen. Over the past two weeks we've seen these trends steady - and steady - and that's why we remain confident during that time that we can safely move into Stage 2 on Monday, said Murphy Friday.In addition to salons, swimming pools and outdoor, contactless organized sports could return June 22. And youth day camps can be in place from July 6. Everyone will have restrictions. Gyms, libraries, museums and some government agencies, such as vehicles, are also expected to reopen during the phase, although a timeline has not yet been set. Murphy has already allowed parks, beaches, sidewalks and lakes to reopen in New Jersey. CORONAVIRUS RESOURCE: Live map tracker Newsletter HomePage The governor has not outlined the specific criteria the state has reached as it gradually removes its lockdown restrictions. Instead, he pointed to an overall decline in new cases, deaths and hospitalizations, as well as a steady decline in the rate of reproduction of the virus. Murphy also noted that New Jersey has increased testing and expanded contact traces that will allow officials to more easily track and sniff any coronavirus spikes. New Jersey, a densely populated state with 9 million residents, reported 12,489 known deaths attributed to COVID-19, with 166,164 known since the outbreak here began on March 4. In New York Alone, there are more deaths and cases among U.S. states. State officials on Tuesday reported 48 new deaths and 495 new cases in New Jersey. More New Jersey. More New Jersey's 1.2 million residents have filed for unemployment since aggressive social distancing began in mid-March, bringing the state's unemployment rate to 15.3 percent, though the number of new claims has declined in recent weeks. Joshua Jongsma, a NorthJersey, owner of a Jersey City massage parlor, was charged with assaulting an undercover officer and later arrested on prostitution charges, authorities said. Elizabeth C. Golden, 50, owns the Golden Sakura Spa on Newark Avenue. On Tuesday, she was arrested after an officer negotiated an exchange of money for a sex act, according to the Hudson County Office's office.The spa was closed due to violations of the sanitary code that included open containers of alcohol, prosecutors said. According to prosecutors, Golden, who also lives on the site of the spa, was the only employee to be charged. She is scheduled to appear in court on October 23.Police: Paterson man charged in road rage shooting in Elmwood ParkMore: RWJBarnabas Exec placed on administrative leave after racially charged commentEmail: jongsma@northjersey.com looking for a good place to massage at JC. I received a gift certificate some time ago and my first visit was a massage which was mediocre, not great pressure or relaxing at all. The second and last time I decided to use the balance of my gift card and get an express face. It was very clear to me that the facial was brand new, perhaps it was her first face. It started me late and it was delivered. There was virtually no advice that frustrating because I am in the industry and know that it is important to have an understanding of expectations. But I wanted to try. I could tell she was new and unsure of the service. Working on someone's face, you want to feel relaxed, and it was the other way around. I was never left alone for service, but she left the room within 7 minutes while the mask was on (when usually they massage your chest or arms hands). The whole experience was bad. When the service was done and it was obvious that it was less than the scheduled time, I told the front desk I didn't like the service at all but still planned the tip as I'm in the service industry as well and understand that it's learning but I think the business should be proud of quality service before hiring people to start who are not ready. The young girl at the front desk said almost nothing. I Am I It was a waste of time and money. Very disappointed in the way it was handled.... After a little conflict of graphics that was handled professionally by Jamal I agreed to do a massage to them. It's a great experience from start to finish. I highly recommend it. I also had a great face. It was relaxing and my skin looked great after treatment. Sonia was professional and polite. ... Experience Date: October 2018Mona S wrote a review of April 20181, but the useful vote just isn't there, I was terribly sore the next day, so I was basically paid to be hurt. I really didn't think my therapist was certified, she seemed to wing it. NOT a pleasant exp at all. I tipped out of pity because therpaist said she was pregnant, but I don't realize how sore I will be the day after what was supposed to be a relaxing massage.... However, I was able to get a really great Groupon offer for a couple massage which I couldn't get away with - so I decided to take the chance. It was pretty much exactly what I expected. Except that it's not a couple massage where we were in the same room - we were in adjoining rooms where the doors just opened into each other. The experience wasn't bad but there really were no extras to go that extra mile. They had a 'zen room' which had a waiting room where they had some cakes and teas while we filled out some legal forms. My massage was pretty good. I had Whitney, who was very nice. My boyfriend was Roneisha, who didn't seem warm, personality wise, but he said she was able to get the job done, so I think that's all that matters. Tip - when you tell them the lower back, it really means right above the butt. Maybe both of my BF had the wrong definition of what it really meant because we thought it was the lower middle of the back. So it's just FYI for you guys who have the same mentality as us! I wouldn't mind going back with another deal, but their prices seem a little high for no-frills, no thrill massage - especially if I can get the same for half the price in Brooklyn, Chinatown or the East Village.... I was very happy to see this place on Groupon. I got Groupon for a long time but didn't try it. I finally had the opportunity to come here. It's This. kinda hard to get an appointment because they are usually fully booked for a few days. I made an appointment 2 weeks in advance (on a weekday afternoon). When I walked in, they asked me to fill out a form and sign a waiver because this is my first time here. After the uniform is complete, my massage therapist, Whitney, came to take me to the massage parlor. The whole atmosphere is good and I also like their temperature there. I used to go to some spa places, but they tend to be too cold. I feel the warmth at Serendipity Spa and Whitney kept asking me if the pressure or everything was OK. I got a 60-minute full-body massage with a sugar scrub for my feet. I told her to focus on her neck, shoulders and lower back. I love how her massage my neck and shoulders. I felt much more relaxed. I'll definitely be back again!... Date: December 2016 2016 massage parlor newark ave jersey city
