Brown/Getty, Jason Merritt/Getty, Patrick McMullan, Gareth Cattermole/Getty, WWD/MONTD/MONTROSEBlake LivelyLet hair falls out naturally for the messy, zigzag piece. Wrap five to six inches of sections around a large, uns cuffed iron to create haphazard curls. Finish with a spritz of saltwater spray, then finger thed. Use Garcelle BeauvaisK hair texture to your benefit: Work moisturizing cream through wet hair and wait for the air to dry out. Run a small dab of the same cream with your hands and smooth any frizzies. Chloé, Autumn 2010 To keep your carcasses moving outwards, stick large, one-and-a-half-inch Velcro rollers over each two-inch section of hair in its bottom place; Roll upwards to your face. Proenza Schouler, Autumn 2010A subordination cream through moist hair with your fingers, then fog with a beach spray. Roughly blow-dry using your hands, twisting small, one-inch sections around your finger. Shake them all after they're dried. Kate HudsonStart with a deep side part. Using random sized pieces, the majority of hair starting from the French mesh hairline. Once the braid reaches the nape, anchoring into a low bun, on the other hand combine with the section of hair. Rachel McAdamsSpritz roots are a volumizer, then blow-hair roughly dry. Tease the hair from the top for the crown and smooth the top layer of hair on it. French braid from the middle of the head to the ends. Safe with an elastic band. Thandie NewtonBlow-dry your hair back and away during brushing on the face. Pull hair to one side and braid starting at the ear level. Finish by securing mesh with a piece of fabric, wide ribbon or scarf attached to a spring. Miu Miu, Spring 2009 Use a dab gel to soften the hair between your screen towards your crown. The brush is neatly back, then elastic or safe into a ponytail in the middle of the head with two bobby needles. Nikki ReedKabaca b-dry hair with her hands, then create waves with large barrel curling iron, leaving the hair un curled in the last two inches. Comb the hair back in the crown, then pull back the top half of the hair, needles or elastically secure Regiment. Face framing pieces get loose hanging. Emily Emily a three-inch section of hair in each temple, pulling strands from behind the ear as it rolls inward towards the nape. Smooth hair on the crown returns to the folds and fix them all together. Place a feathered clip on one side of the head so that a twist peeks out. Emanuel Ungaro, Spring 2010Slick hair back into a high ponytail using gel and a smooth ede on the front. Split the tail into two sections and bend each one with your fingers. Then twist two sections together. Safe with two inches elastic at the ends. Laurel, Spring 2010 Use a slippery brush and hairspray all hair to one side; bend into a flat bun under your ear and needle. The knot sits on top of the top so that you tie a scarf. (This gives you a support so you can see from the front.) Giambatista Valli, Autumn 2010, start with straight hair, and tease the crown. To emphasize the height, pull back to the nape, making the edges firmer than the top. Twist into a messy chignon. Eva LongoriaMist roots are a volumizer and let it fall into either a blow-or-dry, natural part. Set the hair with the large barrel curling iron, then use your fingers to pull back into a loose low knot. Celine, Autumn 2010 Start by creating a low, stylish ponytail with a side part, then use a brush for the tail link. Fog with hairspray, roll the tail under its own, and use an elastic hair to keep it together. Emmy RossumPlead your hair over your head in a ponytail as high as you can. After running a softening serum on the tail, divide it into two sections. Bend a section tightly and wrap it in the base of your ponytail, fixing it as you go; repeat with the other section. Coco RochaBlow-dry hair rough up with your hands, then create a middle part with your fingers. Pull into a low bun and secure with pins.Mila KunisStart with smooth, blow dried hair. Teasing hair from her toe for the crown, then sweeping into a high ponytail. Roll the tail under yourself so that it is open in the middle, then fix the ends in place. Mashed potatoes may be gone, but there's enough chance thanksgiving left-ups will last for days. And while the bowl scraping may not be great for the waist, it's good for amazing hair. Celebrity colorist Kyle White (Who dyes Mariah Carey and Jennifer Love Hewitt strands) has shared her favorite holiday hair recipes. Pumpkin Mask is rich in vitamin A and potassium, so it soothes the scalp and promotes healthy hair growth. To make a pumpkin hair mask, two cups of chopped baked zucchini, a tablespoon of coconut oil, a tablespoon of honey, and a tablespoon of plain yogurt. Apply the mixture to the nasy hair and let it wait 15 minutes. Rinse and shampoo for smooth, shiny strands. Apple Cider Deep CleanserAll this holiday lead to the accumulation of style and, eventually, dullness. The residue hair with apple cider vinegar. It turns natural acidity hair, smoothes the mytil, and even strips excess fat from the scalp. Cranberry Toner If your red hair needs a support and your colorant is on vacation, try cranberry juice toner. After washing and conditioning, lay your head upside down and pour half a cup of cranberry juice over your head. Twist your hair into a bun and blow-dry on the lowest temperature setting. Then rinse with warm water. Water pigments will leave a temporary red tint on the strands without damaging them, says White.Champagne VolumizerThis boozy treatment goes straight to your head. A glass of glasses of champagne with nosed hair and rinsing. It not only increases highlights, but carbonation also promotes plump strands and brightness. From the bottom up!
