Cheap espresso machine with boiler High quality filter holder with wooden handle One chain is suitable for: It just looks good The matte black body and filter holder with a wooden handle are a successful combination. So the inexpensive entry into the world of filter holder machines is fun. Hobby - it's a compact unicycle, espresso is excellent, milk foam is not one of its strengths. A good choice if the place in the kitchen and/or budget is limited. In everyday life: Hobby quickly reaches the temperature, a few minutes after switching it to the first espresso you can prepare, the timer is really not needed. Very good skill knows to please. Large switches switches can be struck safely even soon after getting up, a wooden sieve handle is a real treat for the hand. The name Hobby is chosen well, you will not open a cafe with this machine, but you can celebrate with it the joy of good coffee. Details that we particularly like: price/performance nice to look like a big tank fast-heating period Bezzera New hobby compact, Italian-born espresso machine with impressive features. It has incredible steam power, sleek and compact design and can produce exceptional espresso shots. This semi-automatic took to the espresso scene with a lot to give: Let's take a closer look at the new hobby. Featured in this post Bezzera New hobby compact semi-automatic espresso machine equipped with impressive steam power, 3-way solenoid and an impressive 3-litre water tank. The new hobby is available from stainless steel, black or red housing and is lined up in one of the highest quality durable machines. Design and durability are two of the two things we use to distinguish true espresso machines from espresso appliances. Just shy of 25 pounds, there is quite a lot of substance to this otherwise small piece of equipment. Bezzera's new hobby comes in three colors: stainless steel, black and red. Through the face of the machine, you have a rocker switches to a power machine, run a pump to dispense with water, cook, and switch to steam mode. Power buttons, brew and steam each have indicator lights that illuminate when they are turned on, and Bezzera's New Hobby is also equipped with a dual-purpose ready-made light that indicates when the machine is at the proper beer or steam temperature. Learn more about Pulling Great Shots Key to creating the perfect espresso as you grind, tamp, and create a stable temperature to extract the espresso. Read more here! Read the article Creating cappuccino and latte with a new hobby Despite being new to us, variations of Bezzera Hobby have been produced for over 10 years. It was designed to compete directly with the popular Rancilio Silvia, and received several updates during its production. What sold us on this latest version of Bezzera Hobby was a new commercial steam stick that is the same wand used on the B'10. Now, if you're going for a latte, cappuccino, flat white or macchiato, steam energy on a new hobby is incredibly powerful for such a compact semi-automatic. When we first got a chance to check it out, we all jumped: a couple of bursts of sticks like nothing we've seen before in a car so small. With a powerful 1100 W heating element, New Hobby is ready to pair in just 84 seconds and can steam 5oz milk to 140 Fahrenheit in just 14 seconds. Another great feature is the 3-liter tank with a visible level indicator. With the amount of special drinks you'll be making with a new hobby, you'll appreciate it. Several color options Go with Bezzera New Hobby in Red for a true conversation piece. Another thing to appreciate is how fantastic New Hobby looks. You can go with a stainless steel case for a sleek design that will fit right in with other stainless steel appliances, or you could go with a black design for a clean and simple look. If you want a real conversation piece, look no further than the bright red design. Whatever your preference, you can't go wrong. Prosumer Components New Hobby inherited many components from prosumer machines that Bezzera mainly produces. Reservoir is just one of several features that the new hobby shares with the more expensive prosumer espresso machine Bezzera. The brewing group is an option of chrome brass group BH found on machines like B'10, and a new hobby is also chrome-coated brass, 58mm portafilter for espresso brewing. For easy cleaning, a 3-way solenoid valve directs from the group to a drip tray through a tube hidden behind the machine panels. The popular accessories for the Bezzera Hobby No premium entry-level espresso machine will be complete without the hostess accessories to accompany it. Here's our hand-picked list of accessories to consider if you're considering a new hobby: This elegant 58mm fake is the perfect choice for those who own a Bezzera espresso machine.
