Thirteen reasons why cast salary

Netflix EXCLUSIVE: It came down to the wire (and a little beyond that) but the core eight-member cast of Netflix's hugely popular drama series 13 Reasons Why, have completed contract renegotiations, closing new deals with big salary bumps. We hear Dylan Minnette, who has emerged as the sole lead following the departure of original star Katherine Langford, will be paid in the $200,000 per episode range, while Brandon Flynn, Alisha Boe, Justin Prentice, Christian Navarro, Miles Heizer, Devin Druid and Ross Butler will each be making $135,000 an episode in the upcoming third season, going up to $150,000 an episode in Season 4, should the show go to a fourth season. That is close to what the actors and their reps had been seeking and way above the group's start salaries, said to be in the $20,000 – $60,000 an episode range, with Minnette believed to have started higher, around or north of $80,000. It is customary for the cast of successful shows to seek raises after Season 2. The impetus for the salary demands by the 13 Reasons Why actors was believed to be the big raises that the young cast of another hit Netflix series, Stranger Things, recently got heading into Season 3. They are believed to be paid as much as $250,000 an episode. There is a difference in the size of the orders. Stranger Things will produce eight episodes while 13 Reasons Why's order is for 13 episodes, which explains some of the per-episode salary discrepancies between the two shows as the per-season compensation for the 13 Reasons actors is not that far off from that for their young Stranger Things counterparts. All 13 Reasons actors were still under contracts and started work on Season 3 as scheduled before renegotiations were completed. We hear they even convened together for a cast dinner following the series' first table read. 13 Reasons Why, from Anonymous Content and Paramount TV, was a breakout hit for Netflix. While it has faced controversy over its graphic depictions of suicide and sexual violence, it is among Netflix's most watched series. We hear that Netflix has said during the negotiations that ratings have slipped from Season 1 to Season 2 but since the streaming service does not release viewership data, that is hard to substantiate. In recent weeks, following 13 Reasons Why's Season 3 renewal, Netflix executives have been effusive in their praise of the show's performance. "13 Reasons Why has been enormously popular and successful. It's engaging content," CEO Reed Hastings said during the company's annual shareholder meeting. "It is controversial. But nobody has to watch it." At TCA several days ago, Netflix VP content Cindy Holland also called 13 Reasons Why "one of our most popular shows." How many have been paid Katherine Langford (Hannah Baker), Dylan Minnette (Clay Jenson), Brandon Flynn (Justin Foley), Alisha Boe (Jessica Davis), Christian Navarro (Tony Padilla) or Ross Butler (Zach Dempsey) for their role in the series ? Bye Bye Liberty High School. Clay, Jessica, Justin, Tyler, Tony, Alex, Zach and the other students made their goodbyes in the season 4 of the 13 Reasons Why has been available since last June 5 on Netflix. But how much have they been paid for the 4 seasons and especially for this last season ? The main character of season 1, Katherine Langford (Hannah Baker) would, according to Deadline, pocketed $ 80,000 per episode. After the death of his character in season 1, she has kept a recurring role in season 2, which focused on the trial. The biggest salary for Dylan Minnette (Clay Jensen) ? Unlike she, who left the show after season 2, Dylan Minnette (Clay Jensen) has kept an important role in the 4 seasons, which would have been not bad. If he won also $ 80,000 per episode for seasons 1 and 2, his salary has more than doubled in the two subsequent seasons, as it would have negotiated for 200,000 dollars per episode ! With an income of $ 2 million only for the season finale, it would be the player the best paid of the cast !MEHR AUS DEM WEB The Blacklist : season 8 commissioned for the series The salary of the cast of 13 Reasons Why revealed ! What about other players then ? How many have they won ? Brandon Flynn (Justin Foley), Alisha Boe (Jessica Davis), Christian Navarro (Tony Padilla), Miles Heizer (Alex Standall), Devin Druid (Tyler Down), or Ross Butler (Zach Dempsey) would have earned $ 150,000 per episode for the last season, compared with 135, 000 for the 3. A nice increase, knowing that they all earned between 20 000 and 60 000 dollars in the seasons 1 and 2… A salary identical to that of Justin Prentice (Bryce Walker), who, despite his death in season 3, made many appearances in the last season. Scroll To See More Images When 13 Reasons Why premiered in 2017, the cast was full of unknowns. And while none of the actors are household names now, the 13 Reasons Why cast salary is far more than when Dylan Minnette, Alisha Boe, Ross Butler, Miles Heizer and other stars made their Netflix debut in season 1. 13 Reasons Why, which is based on the 2007 Jay Asher novel of the same name, follows a group of students at the fictional Liberty High School. The first season centers on Hannah Baker, a teenage girl who commits suicide after she's bullied and mistreated by several of her classmates and administrators. After Hannah commits suicide, tapes to each of her bullies are sent, detailing how they played a part in her decision to kill herself. While the series, which is produced by Selena Gomez, has been criticized for its depiction of suicide, 13 Reasons Why has also earned praise for its realistic look at high school bullying and depression. The series also continues to be one of Netflix's most-viewed original series all the way up until its final season, which premiered on Friday, June 5, 2020. Find out how much Brandon Flynn, Christian Navarro, Devin Druid and other 13 Reasons Why cast members were paid for the final season ahead. Katherine Langford Image: Netflix. Salary: $80,000 per episode Langford was the lead of 13 Reasons Why season 1. She played Hannah Baker, a new student at Liberty High School who commits suicide and leaves behind a set of tapes for the 13 reasons and people who were responsible for her death. Langford, whose first role she ever booked was 13 Reasons Why, went on to be nominated for a Golden Globe for the role. For the first two seasons, Langford made $80,000 per episode as a co-lead of the show, according to Deadline. After her character's death in season 1, Langford had a recurring role in season 2, where she appeared in a few episodes. (For season 1, the $80,000-per-episode salary would've netted her $1,040,000.) Langford left the show after season 2, so she didn't receive the pay bump that the other cast members did in season 3. Dylan Minnette Image: Netflix. Salary: $200,000 per episode Minnette, who had acted in shows like Grey's Anatomy, Prison Break and Supernatural before 13 Reasons Why, stars as Clay Jenson, the protagonist of the series who has a crush on Hannah when she was a live and investigates the reasons for her death after she dies. In season 1 and 2, Minnette earned the same salary as Langford: $80,000 per episode, according to Deadline. However, after negotiations before season 3, Minnette became the series' sole lead and received a pay bump to $200,000 per episode. It's unclear if he had the same salary for season 4, but if he did, the rate would've paid him $2 million for the final season, making him the highest-paid cast member on the show. Brandon Flynn Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode Flynn stars as Justin Foley, a jock at Liberty High School who comes from an abusive family and is in on-again, off-again relationship with Jessica. As one of the second-tier cast members, Flynn received between $20,000 to $60,000 per episode in season 1 and 2 before he and the rest of the cast received raises before season 3, thanks to the show's popularity, according to Deadline. For season 3, Flynn was paid $135,000 per episode, and for season 4, he was paid $150,000 per episode, which resulted in $1.5 million for the final season. Alisha Boe Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode After Langford exited 13 Reasons Why in season 2, Boe became the series' female lead. She stars as Jessica Davis, another new student at Liberty High School who's sexually assaulted by another character. In the third season, she's elected as student body president. When it comes to her pay, Boe and the other supporting character are on a lower tier to Langford and Minnette. Per Deadline, she made between $20,000 sand $60,000 per episode for season 1 and 2. For season 3, she made $135,000 per episode, and for the last season, she made $150,000 per episode (the same as other supporting cast members after salary negotiations before season 3), which would've paid her $1.5 million for the final season. Justin Prentice Image: Netflix. Salary: $135,000 per episode Prentice stars as Bryce Walker, a Liberty High School student from a rich family who sexually assaults Hannah and Jessica in season 1 and is murdered in season 3. After his death in season 3, Prentice exited the show as a series regular. Per Deadline, Prentice was also considered one of the supporting cast members, which means he made between $20,000 to $60,000 per episode in season 1 and 2. He received a pay bump to $135,000 per episode in season 3, which would've netted him $1,755,000 for the season if he appeared in all the episodes. Christian Navarro Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode Navarro stars as Tony Padilla, Clay's best friend at Liberty High School who helps him deal with Hannah's death. Tony is also who sends the tapes to Hannah's bullies after Hannah gives them to him before her death. Navarro made between $20,000 and $60,000 per episode in season 1 as one of the supporting cast members on the show. After negotiations before season 3, he received a pay bump to $135,000 per episode. He received another raise in season 4 to be paid $150,000 per episode, which would've paid him $1.5 million if he appeared in all 10 episodes. Miles Heizer Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode Heizer plays Alex Standall, Jessica's ex-boyfriend and the person who kills Bryce in season 3 by pushing him into a river. Per Deadline, he was considered one of the second-tier cast members, so he was paid between $20,000 and $60,000 per episode for the first two seasons. Along with the other supporting cast members, he received a raise for $135,000 per episode in season 3 and another pay bump to $150,000 per episode in season 4. If he appeared in all final 10 episodes of the series, he would've made $1.5 million for the final season. Devin Druid Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode Druid plays Tyler Down, a photographer and severely bullied student at Liberty High School. After attempting a school massacre in season 2, season 3 documented Tyler's emotional recovery. Per Deadline, Druid was also one of the supporting cast members on the show to receive between $20,000 and $60,000 per episode in seasons 1 and 2. He was paid $135,000 per episode in season 3, and $150,000 per episode in season 4. If he appeared in all 10 episodes of the final season, he would've received $1.5 million. Ross Butler Image: Netflix. Salary: $150,000 per episode Butler, who also starred on Riverdale, plays Zach Dempsey, a jock at Liberty High School who assaults Bryce before his death. After the success of both Riverdale and 13 Reasons Why, Butler decided to depart Riverdale, where he had a recurring role. (Charles Melton was recast as his character Reggie Mantle.) For 13 Reasons Why, Butler was paid between $20,000 and $60,000 for seasons 1 and 2. His salary raised to $135,000 per episode in season 3, and he was paid $150,000 per episode for the final season.
