Baseball is America's past, but football is its most popular sport. The Super Bowl is one of the most popular sporting events in the country. You can find fans all over the world. Unfortunately, mobile football games are not as great as their console counterparts. There are some good, but the most popular games in the segment are free to play with aggressive in-app buying strategies. In addition, most of them are arcade or simulation games without a lot of real football action. In short, you get the best football gaming experience on the console for a long shot. However, those who still want to try it can check out the best football games for Android here. BIG WIN FootballPrice: Free to playBIG WIN Football Football Simulator. You play as a general manager and you have assembled a competitive team on the field. Players then clash with other players for dominance. It's basically an online competitive experience, but the central premise is fairly common. You collect players of different abilities and skill. The team is improving as you find the best players. There are also things like zoom cards to give you a little edge while playing. It's fun at first, but like most free-to-play titles, the game has more grind than fun much later. CBS Franchise FootballPrice: Free to play CBS Franchise Football is an NFL simulator for CBS. This means it's basically a free cash grab play. However, there are some redeeming qualities about the app. It's addictive is usually fun, and the grind isn't too bad if you're patient with it. It has a ton of actual NFL players, all teams, and simple, hands-off mechanics. This is a great way to kill some time that should last longer than a few hours. It gets tedious after all, but it can mean hours or months. It's about what you like. ESPN Fantasy SportsPrice: FreeFantasy Sports One of the few games that work great on a mobile phone. ESPN Fantasy Sports is one of the most popular fantasy football platforms on the Internet. The app allows you to communicate with other managers, trade, set your lineups, view free agency, and more. It's This. allows you to create leagues, join leagues and create your own teams. This is basically all the app has to do. He has occasional mistakes. So we would sometimes check that your lists are set properly on the website if we were you. Otherwise, the app works very well. Fanatical FootballPrice: FreeFanatical Football is an unofficial football match with real football mechanics. You play like fictional teams, run plays, score touchdowns, and things like that. The mechanics are a bit clunky and the graphics are second course. There are also some mistakes in the game. However, it's still one of the best clean football games on the Play Store. The game also has two game modes, player updates, bonuses and more. It's free to play the game and it's not great. It could be much, much worse, though. Football DashPrice: Free to play dash football is an excellent arcade style football game. You basically plow your way through a ton of quarterbacks to score touchdowns. The game has simple, one-handed mechanics along with bonuses, Google Play Games leaders, and more. It's not much. However, the arcade style makes it great for short game sessions. It is ideal for commercial breaks during the game. Otherwise, there's not much to it. Madden NFL FootballPrice: Free to play Madden NFL Football is the official NFL game on your mobile phone. This means it is a shameless cash-grabbing game with a free play price tag made by EA Sports. There are some things that make the game not scary, however. It has an actual football mechanic. You line up, call plays, make passes, run, and do all that stuff. It also has weekend tournaments, leaders, and more. It's not half bad until those free-to-play elements come creeping in. NFL RushdayPrice: FreeNFL Rush Gameday is something a little different. This is a children's game with six arcade mini-games. Kids can play them, unlock various digital gear from their favorite teams, and create and customize their own avatars. The game even changes weekly with real NFL team stats. It is mainly designed to play while playing so children can have a more hands-on experience. However, it is definitely designed for young children. It's totally free as far as we could tell, so it's good for younger kids while adults watch football. If you're looking for some arcade football with a little better graphics, try flick quartering too. Ted Ginn: Kick Return FootballPrice: Free to play Ginn: Kick Return Football is a surprisingly good mobile football game. Your goal is to return the punches for the touchdown. You player with simple one-handed control. The game also has player updates, tournaments, and you get points to get within the range of the goal field. That means it's not just a pass or a failure sort of thing. It's simple, but satisfying. There are Play the elements, but they don't permeate every little corner of the game like most of the others. It's really not bad. Touchdown FootballPrice: Free playTouchdown Manager is a pretty competent football sim. It's not officially licensed. This means that all players, teams, etc. are fictional. The game allows you to build teams, train players with a decent training system, develop strategies and win championships. We strongly encourage you to set your own training schemes. Auto training is not great in this game. Otherwise, it's pretty decent for football fans. We'd love to see a game like this with NFL players. However, we will take what we can get in this genre. Yahoo Fantasy FootballPrice: FreeYahoo is ESPN's biggest competitor in the fantasy sports scene. The Yahoo app does a lot of the same things as the ESPN app. This means you can create and join leagues, conduct projects, set lists, browse free agencies, do deals, and communicate with other managers. We found that the Yahoo app is a little more stable than ESPN, but not by much. We still recommend checking your lists on your computer from time to time for accuracy. Yahoo and ESPN are the best free fantasy football options. Those who don't mind spending a few bucks can try FanDuel and Project Kings. They're not great, but they're different. If we missed any big football matches, tell us about them in the comments. You can also click here to check out our latest Android app and game lists! Lists!
