I have worked with the home several times and would not recommend it. Very personable, but to get all cases completed takes months. My father died four months ago, and I still can't get the final bills from Hicks on the tombstone, VA footstone so I can close my father's property. I know it takes time, but the family needs closure and the bill just dwells over my shoulders like cement blocks. Added May 19, 2017 by Kathy Potts Hicks has always been very kind to us, understanding of any situation, and accommodating to all needs. Without a doubt, if you have lost a loved one, Hicks is the best funeral home to help you grieve and lay them to rest with care and respect. Once you've been playing Inactive Heroes for a while, it's time to optimize your team to keep up with difficulty levels and power from other players. Given the sheer number of heroes, skills and playing styles in the game, creating the perfect team is no easy task. Moreover, several factors such as the faction system and an ever-growing list of heroes make it impossible to create a team that will be on top forever. Nevertheless, it is certainly possible to create a fantastic team that can keep up with even the toughest levels and best players. To give you some inspiration, we've compiled a couple of examples of real teams made by top players – both PvP and PvE teams. The factors we recommend you need to keep in mind when creating your team in Indle Heroes include the balance of roles, the fractional advantage system, combinations and synergies, and the potential of heroes — more details about all these factors below, as well as examples of real teams of top players. Table of Contents Balance of Roles It is important to have the right combination of roles on your team in Idle Heroes. There are three overall roles in the game – attackers, supports, and tanks. Each hero in the game is considered to be at least one of these three roles. However, the class of a hero does not necessarily determine whether a hero is an attacker, support or tank. Heart Watcher, for example, is an assassin but is considered a support hero by society. In general, though, mages, assassins, and rangers are attackers, warriors are tanks, and priests are supporters. Just remember that there are several exceptions to this generalization. Unlike several similar RPG mobile games, tanks are not so important in Indle Heroes, which is why many top players choose to bring just one or no tank at all. According to our findings, the optimal balance between roles on your team is three attacking heroes and three support heroes, or three attacking heroes, two support heroes and a tank hero. Faction advantage system All heroes in Indle Heroes belong to one of six factions, making them stronger against another faction and weaker against a third faction. Here's a list of the six factions a hero can be in Indle Heroes. ShadowFortressAbysseForestDarkLight Fractional Advantage System allows all factions to handle 30% additional damage with a 15% increased precision to another faction. Because of this system, we recommend that you consider the composition of fractions on your team. Using exclusively, a faction will put you in trouble if you encounter a team full of the faction that discourages you. Here is the full overview of the faction advantages system Shadow is strong against the Fortress, but weak against Forest. The fortress is strong against Abyss, but weak against Shadow. The abyss is strong against Forest, but weak against Fortress. Forest is strong against Shadow, but weak against Abyss. Dark is strong against Light, but is also weak against Light. The light is strong against Dark, but is also weak against Dark. Although the fractional advantage system is important to keep in mind, other factors should not be ignored. Having the right combination of roles, the best heroes and a strong team synergy is more important than having a perfect mix of factions. Just make sure not to put too many heroes of a single faction on your team. Combinations and synergy Something else to consider when creating the ultimate team are combinations and synergies on your team. Your team will certainly be more powerful if the heroes work well together, rather than just being a selection of individually strong heroes. Here are some examples of combinations and synergies we have found to be very powerful. Heart Watcher is a classic example of a hero who is fantastic for your team, although the main injury contribution does not come from its own attacks, but rather debuff it applies to enemies, which makes the allied deal significantly extra damage. One combination that works very well is Sigmund and a strong healer like Belrain. Sigmund's burning counterattack allows him to counter enemies with less armor than him. The longer Sigmund can stay alive, the more damage he deals with through counter-attacks. By bringing a hero who can keep him alive longer, you're going to increase his total injury production through the fight significantly. Injuries over time effects are a big part of the end of the game meta, making Delacium a first-class pick. He possesses the ability to spread DoTs and other debuffs from one enemy to two other enemies through his Transmissive Seed skill. By bringing heroes with exceptionally powerful DoTs and debuffs, such as the Heart Watchers brand along with Delacium's spread, you have a recipe for a very strong combination. As combinations and synergies can be so powerful, we've found it effective to find a specific combination you want to use and then build your team around it. Best Heroes for your team You can find a use for most E5 heroes in Indle Heroes if you manage to build a team that suits them. But some heroes in the game are simply more powerful than others and better at filling specific roles. Moreover, some heroes and combinations are so much more powerful than others, that they should be given priority heavily when choosing heroes for your team. Some of the heroes matching the description above include: Heart Watcher (PvE)Delacium (PvE)Skerei (PvE)Carrie (PvP)Unimax (PvP)Garuda (PvP) Many top players have found great success in using these heroes on their Team. That's why we recommend that you check them out and see if they're right for your team. You can find many more great heroes for your team with more information in our Idle Heroes level list. Creating examples It's not always easy to start building a team, as there are so many heroes to choose from and directions to go. As mentioned, we recommend that you try to find a strong combination/synergy you like, and then build the rest of the team around it. However, it can also be a good idea to draw inspiration from teams you know are powerful and work late in the game. That's why we've compiled the following examples of real teams made by top players in Idle Heroes. You can only copy any of the following teams if you find one you like as they all will do very well late in the match. We have gathered examples for both PvE and PvP. PvE team Team 1 - Frontline: Delacium, Sigmund. Backline: Drake, Heart Watcher, Delacium, Ithaqua. Team 2 – Frontline: Sigmund, Ithaqua. Backline: Heart Watcher, Delacium, Delacium, Delacium. Team 3 – Frontline: Deathsworn, Horus. Backline: Drake, Garuda, Amen-Ra, Heartguard. PvP lag Team 1 - Frontline: Aida, Carrie. Backline: Drake, Garuda, Russell, Carrie. Team 2 - Frontline: Sherlock, Carrie. Backline: Carrie, Garuda, Belrain, Russell. Team 3 - Frontline: Carrie, Drake. Backline: Carrie, Tara, Belrain, Garuda. That's all you need to know about building a fantastic team in Indle Heroes. If you have any suggestions or input for this guide, please share it with us in the comments section below. Below.
