Steel Guitar Rag by Leon McAuliffe Performed By: Bob Willis The Steel Guitar Rag song by Merle Travis (G)Been travelin' around, seen many a town, Maybe you'll find I'm the (D7)kind of guy that (G)brags. But take it from me and (G7)see, if (C) you don't have a (G)gree No melody roll, like that (D7) ole steel guitar (G) canvas. And if they (C) slide that thing, a (G)long strings it (A7) sounds so dawg gone heavenly, you'll hear (D7) they hear angels sing When you(C) start your feet, you're (G) heart will beat, A (D7) rhythm of that ole steel guitar (G) canvas. You might be a little picky about the kind of songs you hear, You like them, that's bluesy, you make (D7) cry right into your beer, You like them, that's bluesy, you make (D7) cry right into your beer, but (G) if you want a song that's bound to (C) drive away your tears, make your (G) soul with that (D7) ole Steel Guitar (G) Rag STEEL GUITAR EDITION (Second version) AUTHORS NOTES This is a very simplistic version. You need to add your own grace notes, etc. and make it SWING. I haven't indicated any timing (anyone knows of a tab writing program for the Mac that can be customized to the Steel Guitar?). Listen to the many recordings for timing. My favorite is the 1935 Texas Playboys' version, with Leon (at the age of 18) playing. I've indicated a few chords, so if you get people to play this with you it will make it easier. Most people really love playing this song, regardless of their axe. My Copedant: F A B C D G E # note LK1 Ped1 Ped2 Ped3 LKR RKL RKR 1 F#

Notes: ^ = slide up H = hammer on with the bar Part 1(Played, basically on open strings, and using the tip of the bar to fret the various notes.) 1 F# strings 4,5, & 6, with the bar flat on the strings. Part 2 is the only part using pedals. Purists may want to find a way to do it without the pedals.) CHORD A E F# B 1 F# Ending (or add a turnaround there isn't a video lesson for this song The Steel Guitar Rag as sung by Merle Travis (G)Been travelin' around, Considering many a city, maybe you think I'm the guy who brags.
