 Error bars are  $\pm 1SD$ . (A) Predicted and measured average changes of bodyweight and fat mass during 25% caloric restriction in 12 overweight men and women.<sup>80</sup> (B) Predicted and measured average changes of bodyweight and fat mass during 12.5% caloric restriction plus exercise in 12 overweight men and women.<sup>80</sup> (C) Predicted and measured average changes of bodyweight and fat mass during a very low energy liquid diet followed by weight maintenance diet in 12 overweight men and women.<sup>80</sup> (D) Daily weight changes in two obese women during a very low energy liquid diet.<sup>81</sup> Model predictions are shown as solid blue curves and the dotted curves illustrate the uncertainty of the predictions based on the inherent imprecision of estimating baseline energy expenditure, assuming an uncertainty in the initial energy expenditure rate of  $\pm 1$  MJ per day. (E) Average weight change during a 30-day fast in 18 obese men and (F) 58 obese women.<sup>82</sup>
