In the eyes of the customers the chaise-longue, an essential piece of furniture for relaxation and rest, also in the living room of the house. Due to the chaise-longue's particular design and size it is also suitable as a child's bed. The name "champagne-coupé" was first used by Victor Hugo in a speech, which was later engraved on a glass with red diamonds. In 1788, Parisian tailors Charles Rufeld and Thierry Baudouin used the term in a catalog and later coined it as an item of their own design. The design of the chaise-longue was specifically developed for the company Fantaisie et Comptoir when it was launched. The first model of the chaise-longue was built in 1955 in a workshop in Haarlem, where the production of Baudouin furniture has continued to this day. The modern production of the Baudouin chaise-longue was first carried out in the workshop of Baudouin in 1973. Since then, the Baudouin chaise-longue has been available in many variations. Baudouin sells the products not only in the Netherlands, but also in the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, France, Belgium and the United Kingdom. In 2008, Baudouin was acquired by The Herman Miller Group . The production of the Baudouin furniture is done under the name “Herman Miller Baudouin”. Specifications The catalogue of the Baudouin furniture offers a wide range of chaise-longues , lounges , cabrioles , chaise-longues for children and other furniture . The Baudouin chaise-longue is available in classic, transitional and contemporary design. Material The Baudouin chaise-longue is produced from quality hardwood, combined with aluminum, brass or stainless steel . Most of the components of the chaise-longue are solid or made of solid wood. The frame is usually made of aluminum or steel, on which is placed a solid or veneered wooden or lacquered base . The chaise-longue can be washed with a mild soap and water or 520fdb1ae7
