Google unveiled its new service late Sunday night: Google Apps for Your Domain, a common set of Google tools for businesses and other organizations. Here's what it's all about: Google Apps for Your Domain lets you offer our organization-wide communication and collaboration tools — customizable with your brand, color scheme, and content through the admin control panel, and without hardware or software to install or maintain. Tools include Gmail, Google Talk, Google Calendar, and google page builder, and you choose a combination that fits your business. Now you can subscribe to the beta service, and most importantly, everything is free - considering everything you get, it's a pretty good deal. Are you planning to use Google Apps? Thoughts to comments or tips on the lifehacker.com. Google Apps For Your Domain Source: Google Google Docs, Sheets, and Slides apps have received a design refresh on Android. The redesign brings very readable typefaces, more consistent controls, updated iconography, and a restylized list of documents. In addition to visual improvements, the update does not make any functional changes. Google has announced a new design refresh for its docs, sheets and slides apps. All three G Suite apps now offer a more consistent user interface with easy-to-read typefaces, updated iconography, and a revamped list of documents. The redesign is now available in the latest versions of Google Docs and Slides for Android and is now being entered into worksheets. Google says it can take up to 15 days for the redesign of the material to appear for everyone. However, in addition to visual enhancements, the latest versions of G Suite apps don't introduce any new features or feature changes. The redesign of the material theme for Google Docs, Sheets, and Slides for Android comes nearly a decade after the Mountain View company introduced a web content design refresh. As part of its efforts to offer a more consistent look and feel in its G Suite apps, a redesign of Google Drive content for both iOS and Android was implemented in March this year.
