When Mexico face the Netherlands at the Johan Cruyff Arena in Amsterdam.The Oranje will play their first match under new manager Frank de Boer who took over last month after Ronald Koeman left for Barcelona. De Boer, who also played for Barca, is out to prove the doubters wrong with his return to the Netherlands. In 2011-2014 he led Ajax Amsterdam to four consecutive league titles. However, his disappointing coaching performances at Inter Milan and Crystal Palace hurt his career, and he had marginal success with Atlanta United before he was released after the MLS tournament Is Back. De Boer's side will use the friendly as a tuneup in a tight schedule ahead of the League of Nations matches against Bosnia and Herzegovina on 11 October and Italy on 14 October. More international football coverage via The Associated PressA take a look at the selection of friendly football matches in Europe on Wednesday: PORTUGAL VS. SPAINTeenager Ansu Fati will face Cristiano Ronaldo when Portugal hosts Spain in a friendly. The 17-year-old Fati was a sensation in the Spanish league early on, scoring three goals in Barcelona's first three games. In a League of Nations match against Ukraine last month, he became the youngest player in history to score for Spain. Also last month, the 35-year-old Ronaldo became only the second male player to reach a century of goals for portugal's national team to win against Sweden in the League of Nations.FRANCE VS. UKRAINEGrana playing at the Stade de France is of particular importance to midfielder Paul Pogba and striker Olivier Giroud, but for very different reasons. For Pogba, this is a good opportunity to find much-needed form after a poor start to the season against Manchester United. He was on the pitch during United's humiliating 6-1 home loss to Tottenham in the Premier League last Sunday. Pogba's passes strayed and he often failed to follow back in his latest sloppy club performance, and one away his confident goal display in the World Cup final against Croatia two years ago. Coach Didier Deschamps still believes in Pogba and said that recently. But Pogba must make an impressive impression His first game for Les Bleus since June last year. Meanwhile, for Giroud, everything seems like a bonus after a difficult start to his international career. He is set for his 100th cap and needs one goal to equalise France great Michel Platini's tally of 41 goals. That would put the Chelsea striker in second place only to Thierry Henry's domestic record of 51.GERMANY VS. TURKEYJually more than most friendly matches, this match in Cologne will be about experimenting for Germany coach Joachim Löw. He pledged to fielding a weakened team against Turkey so as not to overload his best players in the packed 2020-21 calendar. Goalkeeper Manuel Neuer and midfielder Toni Kroos are among seven players from Bayern Munich, Leipzig and Real Madrid who have been excused from playing in friendlies and asked to focus on later League of Nations matches against Ukraine and Switzerland. In their place, Paris Saint-Germain midfielder Julian Draxler can be expected to step up and lead a makeshift German squad. Turkey hopes to bounce back after losing to Hungary and a draw with Serbia last month. ITALY VS. MOLDOVAItaly expected to field an experimental side in a match that coach Roberto Mancini says is important for the rankings with FIFA and UEFA. Sassuolo strikers Francesco Caputo and Domenico Berardi, as well as Stephan El Shaarawy, who plays for Shanghai Shenhua in the Chinese Super League, may be in attack. Italy captain Giorgio Chiellini and fellow central defender Leonardo Bonucci have not joined the squad yet due to protocol measures after the Juventus employee tested positive for the coronavirus. Napoli and Genoa players have also been ousted from the squad due to a virus outbreak.NETHERLANDS VS. MEXICOThe Netherlands is entering a new era as Frank de Boer takes control of his first match since successor Ronald Koeman as national coach. Don't expect any major changes to the style of play made in the two years Koeman was in charge before leaving for Barcelona. I think they chose me because they want to follow the same line, De Boer said. De Boer will use a friendly against Mexico at Amsterdam's Johan Cruyff Arena to assess his team ahead of two League of Nations matches in the coming days against Bosnia and Italy. Tottenham winger Steven Bergwijn withdrew from the squad due to injury along with PSV Eindhoven midfielder Mohamed Ihattaren. Ihattaren.
