You thought that your beloved Cuisinart Coffee Maker would be a good butler. A few days later, it tells you it needs cleaning. After you are done, the cleaning light is still blinking. Did it happen to you? Then you are not the only one. Many people are facing this problem and looking for answers.Begging to answer the question, how to turn off clean light on Cuisinart Coffee Maker? Let us answer. Surrendering to the insatiable taste of coffee, we often get a machine to brew our drink before leaving the house. These machines need proper care and love, just like the rest of us, if not more.These items need regular cleaning because the water we use is not clean enough. The water is not clean, in the sense that there are minerals present in it. Though minerals are good for us, they are not good for these machines. There are calcium, magnesium, chlorine, etc. mixed with drinking water. After a few usages, a calcified layer emerges at the bottom. This layer wastes heat and interferes with coffee's taste. Another culprit is bacteria. We may not notice, but stagnated water on the filter is a harboring ground for bacteria. These bacteria put a negative taste in our desired drink and on our body.For these reasons, our loved equipment needs to be cleaned regularly. If you use them daily, then cleaning them every month is a good idea.When to CleanExperts suggest that Cuisinart Coffee Makers should be cleaned every 3 to 6 months. This is for routine clean up, but this varies between places.If the water contains more minerals than average, you may need to clean more often. Even if it is not the routine clean up time, your Cuisinart machine might suggest a clean-up through flashing the cleaning light. This happens when the calcium layer builds up in the coffee maker and interferes with the process.To get the best cup, clean the brewer regularly.How to CleanWhen you see Cuisinart self-clean light flashing, it is time for cleaning.First thing first, make sure to remove the charcoal water filter located in the reservoir before decalcifying. Next, you need to fill up the water reservoir to the capacity with a mixture of white vinegar and water.The solution should be in the ratio of one-third of white vinegar and two-thirds water. Let the solution sit in the reservoir for at least 30 minutes to an hour. The vinegar solution will dissolve the mineral in the meantime.If you ever asked yourself, 'how do I use the clean button on my Cuisinart coffee maker?' Get ready to be enlightened. Now press the clean button when the self-cleaning light glows turn the machine on by clicking on the power switch.Clean light should shine steadily, the machine now is in cleaning mode. One cycle of this process should be sufficient.How to Turn Off Clean Light on Cuisinart Coffee MakerLet's now address the elephant in the room, why Cuisinart coffee maker clean light will not stop blinking. The incident probably goes like this, you see the cleaning light flashing and cleaning it as thoroughly as possible. But the clean light is still on. Many users faced this issue, but there is no solution in the instruction manual.We have gathered from the internet that this problem might occur if the cleaning cycle is not completed. If you have a Cuisinart SS series, press 8oz and 6 oz buttons together to dispense water. For DCC series, push button 1-4, and dispense like 12 cups of water.This flushing of water is necessary to get rid of the last remaining vinegar. This method worked for many users. If your brewer still keeps the clean light blinking, you might want a technician to look at it.Turn the dial to the clock. Until clock flashes, hold down the hour and minute button. Then keep pressing and releasing button until the desired time is displayed.How to turn it on?Make sure it is plugged in. Press the ON/OFF button, and it should start humming instantly.How do I turn off the descale light on my Cuisinart?The flashing descaler light means the limescale has started to block the holes in the machine. A descaler or vinegar will help eliminate the limescale, and the light should turn off by then.How often should you clean a Cuisinart coffee maker?If you are a daily user, then the best practice is to clean it once every month.The appropriate way of operating any electronic device would be to follow the manual strictly. However, we often come across many unusual situations with the tools where we can't find the solution to the problem in the manual and we are here for you.Your best buddy, Cuisinart needs to be taken care of regularly to get that perfect cup of coffee. So follow the maintenance procedure given in the manual. Apply these tricks we mentioned above, and you will not have to worry about how to turn off clean light on Cuisinart coffee maker.
