Russia's military stepped up its activity in the Caribbean Sea this year as two of its warships sailed close to Cuba on Sunday. The ships, which included an anti-submarine warfare vessel and a command ship, were accompanied by two Sukhoi SU-30SM fighter jets and were in international waters south of the Caribbean nation. The Russian vessels were first spotted at around 8 a.m. local time (0800 GMT), at a distance of about 130 nautical miles from Cuba's eastern coast, according to the Miami-based Center for a New American Security. They did not pose a threat to Cuba, according to a senior U.S. official. A Russian military helicopter flies over the country on September 1, 2018. The closest Russian naval vessel to the United States in years, the Adm. Aleksandr Vitko, a guided missile cruiser, is in the Gulf of Mexico while the rest of the Russian navy is deployed 520fdb1ae7
