It's not just the sweet whitewashed chapel that we swoon over this wedding guys. Meet Lauren and Damon - these two cuties have been besties since they were 15. Despite living in Brisbane, they decided to hold their wedding on the Mornington Peninsula as soon as they discovered the Tanglewood estate they knew were really nowhere else to like. Enlisting a range of Hello May Vendors (say hello Sparklers and Confetti, White Tree, Kate Morgan) the couple chose a classic romantic wedding vibe and tied the knot after two years of engagement. Lens Lady Ali Bailey and cinematographer legend Nathan Caso were there to make sure Lauren and Damon's big day was captured from all angles. Scroll down for more information... VENU We actually ordered Tanglewood Invisible and didn't look at any other places. I started looking pretty soon after we were busy for wedding venues all over Australia. After I scoured the internet looking at just every photo/video Tanglewood ever took I just knew it would be perfect. We went to see it about 6 months later and it was more perfect than we could have imagined. DRESS I tried on quite a few dresses before finding my dress, but nothing felt like one, to be honest, I wasn't even sure I wanted my dress to look like. I started to think that I would probably have to get something ordering (I'm pretty fussy) and even an appointment booked to start the process. We decided to go to White Lily Couture first for one last look and my mom actually saw Maddie on the rack and insisted that I try it on despite me not being convinced. As soon as I had it and came out from behind the curtain, my mother, sister and our beautiful were all in tears instantly, and I knew then that I had absolutely found found FAVOURITE DETAILS Kindness is so hard to choose. I think the flowers that framed the chapel for the ceremony were pretty incredible - I feel like for me it has become an iconic image in my mind of our wedding. One of the best parts with the stylist and planner was that we didn't 100% know what things would look like until we saw them for the first time in the day with everyone else. We trust our suppliers and they have exceeded our expectations in every way. MEMORABLE MOMENT Going outside only two of us at check-in to have some photos taken. We went out to the most incredible sunset over a magnificent heart-shaped lake in Tanglewood. We got into a wooden rowing boat decorated with flowers and rowing to the middle of the lake. It made for some of our favorite photos, but it was also just so special to have time out for the two of us. WORD OF ADVICE I can't recommend having a wedding planner high enough if that's an option in your budget. Laura Wanderlust Creative was the most incredible person who went through this process, and our day would not be what it was without. As cliché as it sounds, just know that you can never please everyone, and in the end, what matters is that you and your fiancée have the day you want and it makes you happy. STANDOUT VENDORS Really our suppliers were all amazing. I gushed about Laura Wanderlust Creative already so you know my thoughts on her, but the day when Ali Bailey and Nathan Caso were literally like having two friends hanging out with us in a day. They were relaxed, professional, so fun and made us feel like we were absolutely nailing the whole photo shoot thing! In addition, the catering supplier was behind the brilliant, they totally guided us through menu choices, made epic offers that turned out to be better than anything we could think of and delivered absolutely perfect food (and cake!). With a naturally beautiful place and organic styling of the bride's own floristry business, they brought their low-key visions to life with Mavis Jean together to capture the day. Comfort was key when it came to the venue, and having both a ceremony and a reception at the Tanglewood Estate allowed guests to settle down and enjoy from the start. In addition to the stunning views of Port Phillip Bay, this place boasts arguably the most beautiful little chapel we've ever looked out for. Do you feel that it was actually purchased on Gumtree from a small country town and brought in to your new home to be lovingly restored! The reception took place in the old winery, which is now used exclusively as a place for events. With its high ceilings, exposed beams and deck, looking out over the bay above the heart-shaped dam, Claire and Matt were sold at a glance. Since the bride is one half flower muse Style Co, it goes, not to mention that the day was filled with beautiful flowers. Claire kept it simple and elegant with a green and white palette, and used florals to accentuate the existing beauty of both the ceremony and reception rooms, hanging organic arrangements of beams and steel pillars that were created by her brother-in-law. If you are looking for a vendor recommendation they don't come much better than that. Claire tells us: I honestly couldn't say a better word about all our suppliers - they were all such beautiful people making everything relaxed and easy and you couldn't ask for anything more when there's about a million and one thing going on around you in a day. I can recommend all of them! Claire's bridesmaids wore modern, flattering dresses from Sean Joy and we love that dove grey tone. Holly Harnwell's natural make-up and soft Tori waves from the Blisque salon were all girls looking radiant. Would you believe that Claire's gorgeous dress without a back wedding dress was from Asos? I was so tuned to a beaded dress with sleeves,' she shared. And she found only a thing on the late night scroll! With some minor changes it was exactly the number inspired by Gatsby that she was looking for. green and white palette and some giant king protea made for some some Bouquets from the bride's own florist business, Flower Muse Styling Co. Baker Boys kept the party going through the night, and Claire and Matt loved that they could check them out in advance. You can choose up to 12 pieces of the band and they play the show once a month if you can go and listen and even pick specific musicians if you really like some of them. It was amazing! The money was well spent, everyone danced all night.
