Google Cast speakers are basic speakers that have chromecast audio built in and a great choice for those looking to enter the world of wireless, multiroom music streaming. Also Best Speakers for Chromecast AudioHere's a bit of a background info around the history of Google Cast & Chromecast audio, if you want to go directly to the products click on the link below! 5 Google Cast Speaker RecommendationsGoogle Cast & Chromecast AudioThere are two ways to get the Google cast experience: Google: Buy speakers with Google Cast built in or add Chromecast audio to the speakers yourself. Having a built-in Google Cast saves you the hassle of buying a Chromecast Audio plug in, but regardless of the route you go with to get Chromecast set up, the result is still the same. So what's the difference between Google Cast and Chromecast? Essentially, Google Cast is the software in which that device can play audio through, and Chromecast is a piece of hardware (a device) that allows audio to play through devices that would otherwise not have Google Cast capabilities. Google Cast VS. SONOSGoogle Cast is set to compete with Sonos, but which is really better? Both the Google cast and Sonos allow their users to play music in several different rooms in their home. However, Google Cast has one up a Sonos with its ability to connect with a handful of different speaker manufacturer products. Being able to connect to so many products means that Google Cast not only gives buyers a wide variety of speakers to choose from, but also gives audio services an incentive to make their service compatible with Google Cast.Google Cast VS. Apple AirplayGoogle Cast vs. Apple Airplay is a matter of opinion and preference, just like Google Cast vs. Sonos is. Apple Airplay was around before Google Cast was even though- as early as 2011, to be exact. This, to Apple's honor gave the service a bit of a magical feel. However, with Apple Airplay and Google Cast fighting for space in today's market, it's not so easy to tell which service is better. Airplay only works with Apple devices, while Google Cast is set to work with a variety of devices from a range of manufacturers, including Apple products. When it comes to full-screen mirroring, Airplay did it better for a long time and is arguably still much better in terms of quality, although this is a Google domain Google cast pounced on and created a similar feature, though, and has been in the lead ever since.
