

A NOTE FROM THE AUTHOR

As a teacher of young children for over thirty-five years, I am always looking for new and exciting ways to engage my students. I want to teach them not just about reading, math, and science, but also about right and wrong, making good choices, and being responsible.

When I read David Cottrell's book Monday Morning Leadership, I was struck by how simple yet profound his messages of the importance of character and how to develop it were. I thought the story, which focused on a relationship between a young man and his older mentor, would adapt well for my students. I contacted David, and we began a collaboration that resulted in the book you are now holding in your hands.

My students helped me along the way as I wrote and refined the story, and they loved it. It is my hope that the story of Baxter and Paw Paw and the lessons taught and learned will be a great place for you to begin your own conversations with the young people in your life.
