Petsafe automatic feeder reset

It's been a little over a month since I purchased my very first Auto/Smart Feeder and like many of you, I did an extensive amount of research on various automatic feeders before settling on this one. There really aren't many options to choose from, so it all depends on WHAT you're looking for. I'm in my late 20s, familiar with techs, and travel within the US, but usually just over a long weekend. I have a 2 year old indoor cat, and he eats on a set schedule of 2 meals a day (1/4C dry food in the morning; wet food at night). I want to have an auto feeder for ONLY his morning meals. After looking through the options available, I narrowed down my must-haves to: a machine that can feed on a schedule, easy to set/change the schedule, has plug-in cable with battery backup, and communicate with me on my phone. Therefore, I got this one, and hopefully, this can help you:The Machine: Read the instruction! The instruction isn't long, and a lot of people just simply don't read. It's easy to set up, and took me less than 10 min to put it together and connected to the app. It's not loud, just a buzzing sound from the conveyor when it feeds.The Back-up: Get the back-up D Cell Alkaline Batteries and put them in.They're just $8.99 for a pack of 12 from AmazonBasics, and it's an Add-on Item, so you might as well just buy it with the Smart Feeder.The Design: It is ugly (to me lol). Definitely not the sleek or cute look I was looking for, but hey, it does what I needed it to do and plus, I don't stare at it all day. It is sturdy and bottom-heavy; there's a rubbery bottom to prevent it from moving around easily. It's dark blue, accurate to the product images, the top where you fill the food is see-through, so you can see if it's low. You can remove the stainless steel bowl and stand and use your own bowl if you want. The stand is latched onto the machine, so no worry about my cat moving it. I kept everything as-is, and my cat quickly learned the new clinking sound of food dropping.The App: More than 1 person can have the app on their phones. It can only send two types of notifications - notify on errors, and notify on successful feeds. Anything else, it doesn't tell you (i.e. when the food is low). I use a 5lb bag for my cat and it all fits in the feeder. The feeder uses 15-min intervals for all the feeding time, meaning you can't set it down to the specific minutes (i.e. it goes like 6, 6:15, 6:30... etc) and the smallest amount is 1/8C. There is also a "Slow Feed" option, so the food amount will drop in a slower paced manner. You can also "Lock" the dispense button on the top of the machine, so nobody can mess with it.Daylight Saving Time: During this month, the Daylight Saving time happened, and my feeder did not adjust to it. This is particularly disappointing because, for the amount I paid, it should be able to perform this simple time change. What happened was, it did NOT stick to my set 6:15am feeding, meaning on March 11, 2018 when the Daylight Saving time jumped from 2am to 3am, my cat should've gotten his meal STILL at 6:15am. However, the feeder went off at 7:15am. Even though it's "regular time" to him, it is technically an hour behind. I did see the manufacturer working on this issue, so I wasn't the only one and they told us to manually edit the scheduled time back. Not sure when they'll fix this and how it gets updated. I guess we'll see once the Daylight Saving time ends.Travel to Different Time Zones: During this month, I traveled to a different state in a different timezone with a 3-hour difference between me and my cat. The feeder performed without fail, and notified me of each feeding in the timezone I set the feeder to "live in."Overall, I'm satisfied with it, but not EXTREMELY satisfied as I feel like I should be getting more for the amount I paid. Like perhaps having the notification for low food, a live camera, and not disappointing me with a simple Daylight Saving time change. It does the major jobs that I needed it to do, and I can see myself keeping it until a better model or brand comes out. xSorry to interruptCSS Error Setting the time: Press "clock", then press "set" until the hours flash. Press increase or decrease to set the hour. Press "set" until the minutes flash. Press increase or decrease to set the minutes. Press "clock" to finish setting the time of day. Setting the first daily feeding time: Press the "clock", then increase until the daily feeding time indicator displays. Press "set" until the hours flash. Press increase or decrease to set the feeding hour. Press "set" until the minutes flash. Press increase or decrease to set the feeding minute. Press "clock" to finish setting the feeding time. Set additional feeding times: Press "clock", then press increase to display the next daily feeding time. Repeat steps for setting the feeding time for each additional feeding. Remove a programmed feeding time: Press "clock," then press increase until the daily feeding time you wish to remove displays. Press "suspend feeding". Press "clock". Suspend feeding (but retain programming): Press and hold "suspend feeding" for 7 seconds, then release. The suspend feeding icon will appear in the upper right corner of the clock display. The ":" between the hours and minutes will flash once each second. Resume feeding: Press "clock", and the suspend feeding icon will disappear from the clock display.
