Abstract We have developed an interferometric technique that uses a continuous-wave light source and a single laser pulse for recording the timing of coincident events between pairs of photons in a two-photon microscopy experiment. By changing the time delay between the two laser pulses we simulate a Fizeau interferometer. A variation in the fraction of coincident events depending on the time delay between the laser pulses suggests that this interferometer can be used for two-photon fluorescence microscopy.{#sp1.83} {#sp2.84} { 520fdb1ae7
