Bibliography

A bibliography is a list of all the sources that contributed ideas and information to your paper. It should appear on a separate page at the end of your paper. The heading Bibliography is centered at the top of the page. A bibliography is arranged in alphabetical order by the first word in the reference, whether it is a person's last name, an organization name, or the first word of a title (ignore a, an, and the). Single-space the bibliography, leaving one blank line between entries. Use a "hanging indent" style: The first line should be flush left and subsequent lines should be indented at least five spaces.

	Bibliography
Magazine article from an online periodical index	Andrews, Stuart. "Paine's American Pamphlets." History Today, July 1981, 7-11.  Online. Available from Academic Search Premier database http://www.epnet.com. Accessed 9 October 2002.
Book with one author	Fruchtman, Jack Jr. Thomas Paine: Apostle of Freedom. New York: Four Walls Eight Windows, 1994.
Book with an editor	Goldstone, Jack, ed. Who's Who in Political Revolutions. Washington D.C.: Congressional Quarterly, 1999.
Journal article with two authors	Hay, Carla H., and Jay E. Smith. "Thomas Paine and the Religion of Nature."  Historian, 58 (Spring 1996): 642-643.
Online encyclopedia article	"Paine, Thomas." Encyclopaedia Britannica Online. Available from http://search.eb.com. Accessed 9 October 2002.
Web document (with author)	Paine, Thomas. Rights of Man. 1792. Online. Available from U.S. History.org http://www.ushistory.org. Accessed 9 October 2002.
Work within a larger work	Spater, George. "American Revolutionary, 1774-89." In Citizen of the World:  Essays on Thomas Paine, ed. Ian Dyke, 24-49. New York: St. Martin's Press, 1988.
Another work by the same author	"The Early Years, 1737-74." In Citizen of the World: Essays on Thomas Paine, ed. Ian Dyke, 17-23. New York: St. Martin's Press, 1988.

There are few examples of citations for electronic resources in the Turabian manual. Citations for electronic works in this guide are based on an example of an online journal article (p. 159) and other Turabian citation formats. Two items generally expected in electronic citations were added: The URL of the site and the access date (the date on which the material was found). The access date is the last thing listed in the citation.

If you have a type of source not covered in the examples given, ask the librarian to show you the Turabian manual* or the Library's online Turabian guide at http://library.austincc.edu/research/guides/turabian/turabian.htm *Turabian, Kate L. A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations. 6th ed. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1996.