The most powerful component in this suite of tools is Winstep's active window manager, Xtreme Window Manager (XWM). With Xtreme Window Manager, you can now create an integrated work area that looks, feels, and performs better than any other desktop environment—without compromising your productivity. The real power of Xtreme Window Manager is that you can use it with any window manager, such as KDE, Windows, GNOME, or GNOME Classic, or as an alternative to them. Xtreme has many functions such as pop-up windows, context menus, toolbars, window buttons, and maximized windows (window decorations). The main attraction of Xtreme Window Manager is the ability to make window manager operations more intuitive and easy by placing the most used functions on the desktop. Xtreme Window Manager places most common functions at the right side of the desktop, where the mouse pointer is, creating an unobstructed workspace. Most useful features, such as window buttons and pop-up windows, are placed at the right-hand side of the desktop. Most of the functions can be combined in different orders. For example, you can drag the right-side window buttons to the desktop and then drag the buttons to the desktop in any order. You can add window buttons, save window positions, define the most common windows, and create screensavers. With Winstep Xtreme, you are not only able to save your screen positions, you can also save the most commonly used screensavers (like Cairo-Dock). When you are not using Xtreme Window Manager, you can bring up your favorite screensaver, Winstep Xtreme, using the double-click of the desktop. Xtreme can be customized in several ways and many options are provided to suit every user's needs. Also, you can use the maximized window buttons on the desktop to maximize and decrease windows. Winstep Xtreme is the easiest way to make your workspace more productive and enjoyable. The most common reasons you have for using Winstep Xtreme are: Organize and rearrange your work. Put what you need at your fingertips. Eliminate the borders between workspaces and window managers. Use one workspace with multiple window managers. View and control your files, web pages, and favorite programs from one workspace. Why use Xtreme? The active window manager, 520fdb1ae7
