You have 20 minutes to do 20 questions. When you complete the test you will get a score and you can view your answer to each warning question: Please note that this page belongs to the old paper-based TOEFL (PBT). This version of the test is still available, but only in a very limited number of locations. The vast majority (over 97%) tested to adopt a new internet TOEFL (iBT). Please click here to learn about the toEFL iBT. All toEFL PBT administrations submit the exam four sections in the same manner and the structure and written expression of the second part of the test. The structure and written expression section, which includes 40 questions with multiple answers in 25 minutes, is divided into two parts. The first 15 questions are a structured part of this section, where students must choose the word or phrase that completes the sentence. Issues 16-40 (the written expression of the part) include the choice of words or phrases that have the least meaning in the context of the sentence. Test takers fill out their choice on the answer sheet that is provided at the test center. PBT Structure and Written Expression Question Types For each of the 40 structure and written expression questions, there is one correct answer choice among the four answer options. All of the structure questions are incomplete proposals that require the addition of one of the answers. The available answers vary in plausibility, but at least one incorrect option is usually close to the correct answer in meaning. Written expression questions include sentences with four stressed words or phrases, and test-takers must decide which word or phrase to change in order to make the sentence correct. In order to choose the right answer option to change the written expression questions, students should be able to recognize errors such as subject-verb disagreements, inappropriate pronouns, or incorrect forms of noun. The structure and written expressions are for future students and can be taken from several different academic subjects in the arts and sciences, sciences, questions do not imply detailed knowledge of these subjects. Unlike understanding PBT listening, the structure and written expression section does not include the colloquial use of language (all questions are formal). Skills assessed by the PBT structure and written expression Structure and the PBT written expression section primarily assess the knowledge of standard written English conventions. However, the way these skills are assessed deserves special attention, especially with regard to written language issues. Knowing the correct English is definitely a must for high scores in this section, but test-takers should also be able to recognize the wrong English language to be successful. The structure of the PBT and the written expression have been criticized for testing skills in isolation and without further context, and this is the main reason that the TOEFL online test does not have a similar section. PBT Structure and written expression of the policy and procedure Taking notes on the test booklet or answer sheet is prohibited during the passage of the structure and written expression of the PBT section. Students should not be able to circle or emphasize words in a test brochure or place any markings on the answer sheets other than filling out appropriate circles for their choice of response. All test materials are returned at the end of the exam period and students who have been found to be in breach of this policy are subject to cancellation. The structure of the PBT and the written results of expression in universities While the requirements of PBT in most universities apply only to general scores, there are some institutions that have minimum standards for structure and written expression section. For example, the College of Arts and Sciences at the State University of New York-Albany prefers that its applicants receive structure and written grade of expressions of at least 57 points (it is interesting that this unit does not have other specific standards for PBT suborists). SunY-Albany applicants for teaching alumni assistants must score at least 60 in structure and written expression, but it should be noted that this school has a stated preference for TOEFL iBT because of its speaking component. Thus, applicants who accept PBT can be interviewed by phone. Northeastern University Law School requires an assessment of at least 60 each on all three of the PBT's multiple-choice sections, including structure and written expression. According to ETS, the scaled structure and written expression 52 is in the 50th percentile of all test-takers. Research on the structure of the PBT and a written expressionA document presented at an academic conference in 2006 claimed that THEEFL PBT average overall and sectional scores (including structure and written expression) were higher students whose native languages were closer to English. For example, native Japanese Taking PBT had more difficulty than students whose native language is German. The study also showed that economic factors, such as GDP per capita, average years of study and trade share in GDP, strongly correlate with TOEFL PBT.
