However, analysts commonly use some key metrics to help gauge the value of a stock. Electronic Arts's P/E ratio Electronic Arts's current share price divided by its per-share earnings (EPS) over a 12-month period gives a "trailing price/earnings ratio" of roughly 33x. In other words, Electronic Arts shares trade at around 33x recent earnings. That's relatively high compared to, say, the trailing 12-month P/E ratio for the NASDAQ 100 at the end of 2019 (27.29). The high P/E ratio could mean that investors are optimistic about the outlook for the shares or simply that they're over-valued. Electronic Arts's PEG ratio Electronic Arts's "price/earnings-to-growth ratio" can be calculated by dividing its P/E ratio by its growth — to give 2.9865. Electronic Arts's "short interest ratio" (SIR) Electronic Arts's "short interest ratio" (SIR) is the quantity of Electronic Arts shares currently shorted divided by the average quantity of Electronic Arts shares traded daily (recently around 2.5 million). Electronic Arts's SIR currently stands at 2.46. In other words for every 100,000 Electronic Arts shares traded daily on the market, roughly 2460 shares are currently held short. However Electronic Arts's short interest can also be evaluated against the total number of Electronic Arts shares, or, against the total number of tradable Electronic Arts shares (the shares that aren't held by "insiders" or major long-term shareholders — also known as the "float"). In this case Electronic Arts's short interest could be expressed as 0.02% of the outstanding shares (for every 100,000 Electronic Arts shares in existence, roughly 20 shares are currently held short) or 0.0215% of the tradable shares (for every 100,000 tradable Electronic Arts shares, roughly 22 shares are currently held short). That has enabled analysts to estimate a "forward annual dividend yield" of 0.5% of the current stock value. This means that over a year, based on recent payouts (which are sadly no guarantee of future payouts), Electronic Arts shareholders could enjoy a 0.5% return on their shares, in the form of dividend payments. In Electronic Arts's case, that would currently equate to about $0.17 per share. While Electronic Arts's payout ratio might seem low, this can signify that Electronic Arts is investing more in its future growth. Electronic Arts's most recent dividend payout was on 23 March 2021. The latest dividend was paid out to all shareholders who bought their shares by 1 March 2021 (the "ex-dividend date"). Have Electronic Arts's shares ever split? Electronic Arts's shares were split on a 2:1 basis on 17 November 2003. So if you had owned 1 share the day before before the split, the next day you'd have owned 2 shares. This wouldn't directly have changed the overall worth of your Electronic Arts shares — just the quantity. However, indirectly, the new 50% lower share price could have impacted the market appetite for Electronic Arts shares which in turn could have impacted Electronic Arts's share price. Electronic Arts share price volatility Over the last 12 months, Electronic Arts's shares have ranged in value from as little as $99.8529 up to $150.1138.
