Unlike our location-based system with base 10, the Roman system is based on the addition (and sometimes deceiling) of seven different values. These are the symbols used to represent these values: SymbolValue I1 V5 X10 L50 C100 D500 M1000 For example, to express the number 737 Roman numerals that you write DCCXXXVII, that is, 500 + 100 + 100 + 10 + 10 + 10 + 10 + 5 + 5 + 1. However, for numbers 4 and 9, a write-off is used instead of addition, and a smaller number is saved before a larger number: for example, if you want to add a smaller number. You could argue that 199 will be easier written as CIC, but by the most common definition you can subtract only a number that is one order of magnitude smaller than the numbers you subtract, which means that the IC for 99 is invalid. Roman numerals are often used in numbered lists, on buildings to indicate the year in which they were built, and in the names of regents such as Louis XVI of France.
