The block was made by John Colbert (meta.wikimedia.org). The reason you can say Open Proxy: Colocation web hosting - Contact stewards if you are hurt. The block starts at 5:18 p.m., November 15, 2019. Please include all of the above information in any requests you make. If you think you were blocked by mistake, you can find more information and instructions in the global policy No open proxies. Otherwise, to discuss the block, please submit a request for a review to Meta-Wiki or send an email to OTRS stewards in line for stewards@wikimedia.org including all of the above details. You can't edit Wikipedia at this time. You can still browse the pages, but at this time you are unable to edit, move or create them. Editing from 88.198.0/16 was blocked (disabled) by Elclockid for the following reason (s): the IP address you are currently using has been blocked because it is considered a web host provider or colocation provider. To prevent abuse, web hosts and colocation providers may be blocked from editing Wikipedia. You won't be able to edit Wikipedia with a web host or colocation provider. Since web hosting acts as a proxy or VPN because it hides your IP address, it has been blocked. To prevent abuse, these IPs may be blocked from editing Wikipedia. If you don't have another way to edit Wikipedia, you'll need to request an exception to the ip block. If you don't believe you're using web hosting, you can appeal the block by adding the following text on your conversation page: unlock the reasonOnce on the colocation web hosting block, but this host or IP is not a web host. My IP address is a kew. Put any additional information here. ----}}. You have to fill the gap with your IP address for this block to be investigated. Your IP address can be identified using whatismyip.com. In addition, if you want to keep your IP address private, you can use the ticket request system. If you're using a Wikipedia account, you'll need to request an exemption from IP blocks, either through an unlock template or appeal with the unlock request system. Administrators: The user's right to be excluded from the IP block should only be applied to allow users to edit web hosting in exceptional circumstances, and they should usually be sent to an email team of functionaries. If you're going to give ipBE the right, CheckUser CheckUser take a look at the score. This can be requested most easily at SPI Fast Checkuser Queries. Unlocking the ip range or IP range with this template is strongly discouraged, at least not to contact the lock administrator. This block expires at 3:28 p.m., December 12, 2020. Even if blocked, you will usually still be able to edit the user's conversation page and email other editors and administrators.
