Inside: Make the swimsuit hide pattern for free with this post. If you plan to spend time in the water this summer you need to make this free sewing pattern. I knew I would be spending a ton of time this summer in my swimsuit and wanted a new cover to wear. This swim hide tutorial will give you the freedom to chase children, be comfortable, and look great around the water this summer. I created this female swim cover free template in the size of xs-xxl for myself and share with you all! I like how it's free and fit. The dolman sleeves are easy and fit just loose enough, but not too baggy. You can add a tie at the waist or not, in any case fits great. I like how it turned out. Join the Life Sew Savory Pattern Group for support on this template! Swimsuit hide pattern for free - I sewed up the original orange version many years ago and decided to make a new one for our decent trip to the Dominican Republic. I love the stretch lace I used for this new version. I used the same fabric for a waist tie, but the tape will also be a great way to add a belt as well. See through swim cover up - You could do it with a solid cloth, but I like the look of a little see through the fabric. My swimsuit happens to be blue as well, I can't decide the beach cover pattern - no matter if your beach plans or pool this summer cover up is the perfect way to look gorgeous and be comfortable. If you are looking for a tank dress to hide the pattern you can check on summer sewing. I got the cloth from Fabric.com at the gap and when it came it was more thought-out than I thought it would be. It ended up being perfect for covering swimming though, so it all worked out! I would recommend any light knit or stretch lace for this cover up for the perfect see through swim cover up. 1-2 yards of cloth. The free Link template has been updated. it no longer takes you to the craftsylbluprint it now goes to my own store for you to download free pictures. You can go print a free template free template HEREThe two neck lines are one for the front and above for the back neckline. You will also need to extend the pattern to the desired length. Measure from your shoulder to the knee (or higher/lower then extend the pattern to that length. you can cut it straight down or flare ours a little if you are fuller in the hips. Add one inch for the hem allowance. You'll need 1.5 yards for the size of the XS-S and 2 yards for the M-XXL. My fabric was 60 wide. 3/8 seam allowance included in the template. 1 x width of the fabric for neck binding. Cut out an extra belt as it is aimed at a printed template. 2. On the right side together, sew one one Starting with one of the open sides of the shoulder, put the neck tying the right side together with the body cover and sew.4.It now have to look like this. You can just use the zigzag if you don't have a serger.5.With the right side cover up in front of you, flip the neck binding on the back side and pin on the front.6.My tips for sewing with jerseys. Use a woolen nylon thread and set you sewing machine on a knit stitch. Check out this complete tutorial for sewing and hemming knitted fabrics. 7.Top-stitch 5/8 from the edge to keep the peg in place.8.Flip to the back and trim the seam allowance if it is too wide. Sew the other shoulder seam.9.With the right side together to sew the side seams by hand until hem.10.Sew a piece of belt on the right side along the long side.11.Cut off two 4 pieces for the belt loop. Turn the loops and belt right side out.12.Hem with 1 hem.13.Turn under and sew 1/2 for the sleeve finish.14.Place strap loops on the side seams right at your natural waist height. Turn each end under through and then sew. This is sponsored by a post written by me on behalf of JOANN. All opinions and text are my own. A trip to the beach is not complete without a statement piece! This carefree silhouette, adorned with bright pink pompoms, is perfect for a day on the beach paired with a wide-brimmed floppy sun hat. Brightly printed tropical parrots and deep pink florals add a touch of quirky instantly lifting your view by the pool. You are sure to make a splash on your next visit to the beach or pool with this DIY kimono. Layered it over his favourite skinny jeans with a pair of flirty high heels to make the perfect piece of statement for an evening out in town. Wear it tied at the waist or let it flow for a carefree boho feel. It is perfect for sunlight filled by a day or a fresh evening. On my last trip to JOANN, I fell on my heels for this gorgeous fabric tropical area. It is a light fabric with enough opacity for beachwear. It features brightly colored, stunning tropical flora and fauna. Pairing it with this strawberry simplicity Ball Fringe Trim gives him a touch of playful whim. Cut out all parts of the pattern according to the template and diagram instructions. We will use the French seams to finish the inside of the beach cover, front and back, along with the wrong sides facing each other. It may seem like a But it will lead to a completely finished seam. Stich shoulder stitches along with a 1/4 inch seam benefit. Tap the seam allowance to the back. Fold the shoulder stitches together so that the right sides collide with each other. This will create a closed seam. Stitch along the shoulder seam using a 3/8ths-inch seam allowance. Now it's time to add a pom to the wash trim! Attach the trim along the edge of the cover, avoiding sections that have been marked for seams under your arms. Attach the pom to the floor with the trim upside down along the edge of the fabric. This is my favorite way to attach a Pom Pom trim. This gives you a ready edge and it allows you to sew the hem only once. Leave a hole between the armpit seam markings. If you haven't moved the labeling from the template yet, do so now. Sew along the raw edge of the fabric and trim with a wide zigzag stitch. This will attach the finish to the fabric and keep the fabric from untangling. Two birds with one stone, right? The extreme right zigzag stitch should barely catch the edge of the fabric and finish. Attach the finish around the entire cover. Create a offset finish by folding the fabric tape piece in half and creating folds with iron. This will serve as a guide. Fold in the untreated edges on each side to level with the crease. Attach the binding to the cover cutout, leveling the edge of the offset tape to the edge of the neckline on the right side together. Sew along the folds of the offset tape leaving the first inch of the offset tape unsewn. Stop one inch before reaching the end. The face of the right side of the tape is shifted together and stitch the short sides together. Turn the tape of the offset down to the wrong side of the fabric, attaching raw edges. With a warm iron press, it's in place. Sew along the edge of the offset trim to ensure it's in place. Turn off the cover on the wrong side. Line the markings together where the finish has been lowered. Fold the seam allowance over and sew the seam together with a 3/8th-inch seam allowance. Here it is! Now you have stitched up an adorable beach cover! You can find all the materials for this DIY Cover Up at your local JOANN!
