The description is one of the largest hadith books written in Islamic history containing more than twenty-seven thousand (27,000) hadiths according to Maktab Shamil. It is organized in collections of hadiths, narrated by each Sputnik (Saabi), starting with asharah mubashhara (ten, which was promised paradise). This underlines their status and the efforts they have made to save the ahadeeth messenger of Allah (S). Some say that Ahmad ibn Hanbal made a comment about his book, which reads: I have included hadith in this book only if it was used as evidence by some scholars. Abu al-Faraj ibn al-Jawzi ironically claimed that Musnad contains hadiths that are fabricated by interpolation (i.e. narrator, muttering information, mixing texts and authoritative chains), which are said to have nine hadiths by some or fifteen hadiths by some others. However, it has been decided that the hadiths suspected of fabrication are not new hadiths, which are the creations of the dubious imagination of the narrator.
