Inver Stone Lifting Records

The Historic Inver Stone was looked after by Mrs. June Richard (29/10/1929 – 30/03/2020) for over 40 years. June lived in a small cottage in Crathie Scotland where the Inver Stone had a resting place at the corner of the house in the front garden. June Richard made visiting the stone an even more exiting & enjoyable experience as she was a very friendly woman who invited every visitor of the stone into her home to sign the record book along with a cup of tea & a biscuit. Each & every visitor to the stone gave June as much respect as she gave to each & every one of them. It was a very special Historic Stone to visit.

Over the years hundreds of people from all over the world have made the trip to visit & lift the Historic Inver Stone. This specific stone has a very unique history belonging to it. After this stone was used in a lifting exhibition in Glasgow, the five famous McGlashen Stones were born after people wanted to see more. The McGlashen stones were then used in multiple Highland Games & then in 1986 used as an event at the World's Strongest Man for multiple years. After this, in 1993 Atlas Stones were created & used as a major event within the World's Strongest Man & have been used ever since. Atlas Stones have since been used within other strongman & Highland Games competitions all over the world.

The Inver Stone was also the reason the great Scottish sporting star Donald Dinnie got his name. Donald Dinnie's father, Robert Dinnie had his own building firm & one day invited a man to attempt to lift the Inver Stone as part of a job interview for a labouring job.

At the time Robert himself was the only man in the county who could successfully lift the Inver Stone to any great height & was so impressed after seeing the man lift the stone & replicate his feat of strength that he gave him a job & said to him, after witnessing that lift he will name his first born son after the man, his name was, Donald.

Moving the Inver Stone to a new home

In „August 2020“ the Historic Inver Stone was moved to a new home at Braemar Highland Games Centre. It was decided that this would be a good location as it is only a few miles away from its original home at Crathie & it will still be as accessible to lift as it was before.

As the Inver Stone was now moved to a new location, a new challenge was also created. A 3 feet high whisky barrel was put in place with the stone at Braemar to give people lifting something new to aim for & achieve with their efforts, lifting & placing the stone onto the barrel for a new addition for a successful lift. The five lifts of the Inver Stone are still something to aim for (depending on each lifter of the stone & what they themselves wish to achieve).

1. Wind Beneath the Stone – Breaking the Inver Stone away from the ground a few inches.
2. Lifting the Inver Stone up & over the knee, onto the lap in a squatting position.
3. Standing up while holding the Inver Stone at chest height.
4. Standing up with the Inver Stone resting securely on the shoulder.
5. Standing up & pressing the Inver Stone over head with arms in a locked-out position.
6. The New challenge / The Barrel Lift – lifting the Inver Stone & placing it securely in place on top of the Whisky Barrel.

Inver Stone Lifting Records

Three Rules of any Historic Stone lift:

1. NEVER use Tacky on any Historic Lifting Stone / Clach Neart. Chalk may be used.
2. Always try your best to use the negative part of lift & put the stone back down onto the ground as best you possibly can (if at any time the stone accidently drops – get your feet out of the way FAST).
3. Once your lift is over, if the stone was moved to a better lifting area for flatter ground, move the stone back to where it was when you arrived.
