What percent animal are you filter

Naughty Instagram filters have become a saving grace now that we're all quickly running out of things to do. The latest one most people love is the genetics heritage scanner filter. This filter scans you and makes you think it will tell you what percentage of your particular nationality is, but then completely transform your face into a strange human/animal creature. This filter combines surprises, ugly faces and animals all in one - the perfect combination to guarantee a laugh at any time, without fail. Get involved, then get your mom involved, then (for some real comedy gold) send it to your grandparents and get them to make it. This is the right time and this is how you do it. What is a genetic inheritance filter? It's a filter on Instagram that pretends to scan your face - at first many different nationalities flick past (Welsh, French, Italian, etc.) as well as percentages. At this point, you'd think it was just boring and a little problematic but then it suddenly landed on an 85 percent pangolin and turned your face into a chaotic (but funny) animal shape. As it is: There are many different animals that you can get. We don't know exactly how many but we have seen crabs, flies, mice, dogs, pangolin, snails, limpets, llamas, wasps and chameleons. How to download genetics scanner filter? The official name for the filter is a genetic scanner and is made by iamcraiglewis2. If someone on your Insta uses it, you will see the name of the filter in the upper left corner, you can then click on this and save it. You can also search for filters on your phone. If you are logged into the camera on Insta, scroll right through all the filters at the bottom until you find the search icon. Then look for genetics and it will show up, save it to your phone and you've got a fun hour there.
