Processes and devices for the production of stannous chloride and other oxychlorides from gaseous hydrochloric acid are well known in the art. Such processes generally comprise two operations, the first being the treatment of hydrochloric acid with a solid reductant to produce stannous chloride, and the second being the production of hydrogen chloride from the stannous chloride. The general purpose of the processes of this invention is to provide a simple and low cost method for producing such stannous oxychloride solutions. Q: ReferenceError: $ is not defined. Some working version in chrome. Some not When I run this in chrome it says it is undefined, when I run it in Firefox (upgraded) it works. Why? What do I need to do to make this work in both browsers? var q = "fred"; var part = "nice"; function init() { var result = jQuery.map( "p", function() { return $(this).text(); } ).join( " " ); console.log(result); } init(); A: You're making a reference error, not a runtime error. The reason is that jQuery has not yet loaded, because it doesn't exist in that context. If you include jQuery in that context, it'll work (but it's undefined until then). /s * Licensed to the Apache Software Foundation (ASF) under one * or more contributor license agreements.
