Wow waveblade ankoan rep guide

This week's World Quest Is Bonus Events of the Week, so this is the perfect time to grind the rep you need in Nazjatar and Mechagon. This is the first time since the 8.2 World Quest Bonus event has entered the rotation. Not only will you get more reps, you'll also get some military resources from the weekly quests that everyone really enjoys. Patch 8.2 comes with great new content, but most players are after only one thing: the ability to fly again. All you need is the end of the battle to reach Azeroth Pathfinder Part 2. No problem, is there? Except for many players getting stuck on raising their reps in Nazjatar and Mehagon revered. Below is my guide to the best way to grind that rep based on my own experience of playing waaaaay too much over the holiday weekend. Nazjatar Reputation there are two reputations here and which one you raise depends on your faction. The alliance is working on a Waveblade Ankoan representative while Orda focuses on Unshackled. The key to raising them is the combination of completing daily newspapers, bodyguard daily newspapers, and cleaning up all the world's quest zones every day. (Note: As noted in the comments, daily bodyguard quests do not give Nazjatar a representative. After that, there are only a few activities that will actively garner you an increased reputation. Namely, killing rare mobs (50 reps each), killing an elite that spawns every 3 hours in the middle of the map (150 reps), and defeating legendary war animals in the zone for the first time (250 reps). In addition, there is a PvP daily that generates every few days - Battle for Nazjatar - that provides 500 reps to whether you win, weekly searches to summon a creature and defeat it in the Mardivas lab for 500 reputation, and Emissary quests that reward 1500 reputation. If you are really behind on your Nazjatar reputation, you can always buy a contract from the auction house that will provide you with 10 reps for each Kul Tiras and The World quest you finish. Then go crazy and clear how many of these world quests you can every day. Mehagon's reputation is much easier to elevate the reputation of Rustbolt Resistance. After the usual running through the main chain quests, as well as doing daily newspapers, there are at least four kinds of hidden daily newspapers. They won't appear on the map with their trademark blue exclamation point, but you can track them down if you know how. The first kind of hidden daily newspapers are NPCs that are available to everyone, you just need to know where on the map, find them. Often the NPC on-site landing for your faction will offer 1-2 quests, usually donate the fabric/ore/fish quest and kill x robots daily. Another 2-3 hidden daily NPCs are scattered all over the map and theirs and quests are changing, well, daily. Make sure you scout the entire island or check out the Wowhead post of active Mechagon newspapers for your region. The second kind of hidden daily newspaper is in the bleak alternative future of the island, where King Mehagon detonated a bomb that destroyed all the flesh, leaving only robotic structures to survive. You can get there initially in the days of Chromie active on the island with her daily searches, Another place. Once there, you can knock out another 2-3 daily newspapers offered to you. You can also kill mobs until blueprint: Personal Time Displacer does not fall. The use of Personal Time Displacer is transported to an alternate future on days when Chromie is out of business. Once there, you can knock out more daily newspapers, including one that is offered only when the quest for Chromie is not active, which begins when you kill Rusty Prince (which is also required to rest in the Pistons achievement.) The third kind of hidden daily newspapers is only active when you work for one of the main daily newspapers. For example, on a day when Pirates, Sea Monsters, Robots are active daily, you are asked to go to small islands off the west coast to find lost treasures. While there and took this main quest, but did not complete it, you will find two more daily newspapers. But without being on the main daily, these hidden daily newspapers won't appear for you. The latest set of hidden daily newspapers includes fishing. Every day you can reel in 10 rare fish around the island and pass them to Daniel anglers for 25 reps each for a total of 250. It folds up every day and kicks in a succession of achievements that will reward you with a Hyper-Squeezed Ocean toy allowing you to fish anytime anywhere. We have a complete guide to this toy if you want to put in a while. I also want to point out daily that the map that can be completed by farming, but alternately you can complete it by throwing gold at it. You can pick up more recycling daily at Junkwatt Depot, which rewards 150 reps. He asks you to kill the elite mobs in the warehouse while you rob 30 Hardened Springs, 10 Tempert Platinum, and 5 Machine Gear Assembly. You hand them over to the rep and some loot. But the secret here is that these items are not soulful, so if you don't want to process them or just missing one or two turns in the items, you can head to the nearest auction house and buy them. At the top of agriculture all the daily newspapers, killing rare mobs will net you an extra representative. Every time a rare crowd shows up, you'll see a zone of wide emotion. The trick is to get there quickly because they die fast. If you don't know where they are, just ask in a general chat and Tom Tom Addon uploaded so you can follow the coordinates. To get to the crowds in time, you want the Anti-Gravity Pack active for a 20-minute flight buff. You can get one of them from the completed construction table on days days active or, if you're lucky, you can create your own if the plan for it falls for you from Rustfeather. Note that you can kill a rare crowd as many times a day as you want, but they will only drop prey for you once a day and only provide a reputation for the very first kill. The final tip is that's all for the rep to get into the new zones at the moment. Remember that you can always buy contracts from the auction house or take advantage of Darkmun Faire's reputation for a positive effect when the carnival is active. As you can see, it's much easier to get a Mechagon representative given the number of daily newspapers available. Nazjatar representative is going to go much slower given the smaller activities that give a reputation. In both cases make sure you clean up all the daily newspapers. If you don't have a couple of hours a day each day for full daily cleanses, I recommend running Nazjatar for a week and focusing on Mehagon on weekends. (Note: Some commentators are correctly stating that completing the Mechagon Daily World quest should be a priority every day because it gives 850 reps. look and see if it's quick to finish and if it's worth your limited time. YMMV.) If you are aware of any repetitions of grind hints, tricks, or quests I missed, let us know in the comments below. Here you can buy a reputation with Waveblade Ankoan.
