Stories that have morality and the messages behind them are always powerful. In fact, it's crazy how powerful a 200-word story can be. Our latest story article became so popular that we decided to create another list in which each story has a simple morality behind it. The 10 best short moral stories the other of these stories are very short and basic. In fact some are so basic they are most likely featured in children's books somewhere. However, the power of the message remains the same. Here are some more of the best short moral stories:1. The old man lived in the village the old man lived in the village. He was one of the most miserable people in the world. The whole village is tired of him; he was always gloomy, he constantly complained and was always in a bad mood. The longer he lived, the more bile he became and the more poisonous his words were. People avoided him because his misfortune became contagious. It was even unnatural and insulting to be happy beside him. He created a sense of unhappiness in others. But one day, when he was eighty years old, something incredible happened. Instantly everyone started hearing rumors: The old man is happy today, he doesn't complain about anything, he smiles, and even his face is refreshed. The whole village came together. The old man was asked: Villager: What happened to you? Nothing much. Eighty years I've been chasing happiness, and it was useless. And then I decided to live without happiness and just enjoy life. That's why I'm happy now. - Old ManMoral stories: Don't chase happiness. Enjoy life2. Wise manPeople come to the sage, complaining about the same problems every time. One day he told them a joke, and everyone roared with laughter. A couple of minutes later he told them the same joke, and only a few of them smiled. When he told the same joke for the third time, no one else laughed. The wise man smiled and said: You can't laugh at the same joke over and over again. So why do you always cry about the same problem? moral history: Anxiety won't solve your problems, it's just going to waste your time and energy.3 Stupid salt seller DonkeyA used to carry a bag of salt on his donkey to the market every day. On the way they had to cross the creek. Once the donkey suddenly fell downstream and the salt bag also fell into the water. The salt dissolves in water and therefore the bag has become very easy to carry. The donkey was happy. Then the donkey started playing the same trick every day. The salt seller understood the trick and decided to teach him a lesson. The next day he loaded a bag of cotton on his ass. Again he played the same trick hoping that the cotton bag would still get easier. Related: 18 pointless worries I decided to stop EntertainingBut soaked cotton became very carry and donkey hurt. He's learned his lesson. He didn't play the trick anymore after that day and the salesman was happy. The moral of the story: Luck will not be favored always.4 Having a Best FriendA story tells that two friends were walking through the desert. At one point along the way they quarreled, and one friend punched the other in the face. Whoever got slapped was hurt, but without saying anything, wrote in the sand, Today my best friend punched me in the face. They continued to walk until they found an oasis where they decided to take a bath. The man who was hit got stuck in the swamp and started drowning, but a friend saved him. After he had recovered from near drowning, he wrote on the stone: Today my best friend saved my life. A friend who struck and saved his best friend asked him: After I hurt you, you wrote on the sand, and now you write in stone, why? another friend replied: When someone hurts us, we have to burn it in the sand, where the winds of forgiveness can erase it. But, when someone does something good for us, we have to engrave it in stone, where no wind can ever erase it. Moral of the story: Don't appreciate what you have in your life. But appreciate who you have in your life.5 Four Smart StudentsOne night four college students were out partying late at night and did not study for the test, which was scheduled for the next day. In the morning they thought about the plan. They made themselves look dirty with fat and dirt. They then went to the dean and said they went out to the wedding last night and on the way back their car tire burst and they had to push the car all the way back. So they were unable to take the test. The dean thought for a moment and said they could have a retest in 3 days. They thanked him and said they would be ready by then. On the third day they appeared before the dean. The dean said that because it was a special state test, all four had to sit in separate classes for the test. They all agreed how well they prepared in the last 3 days. The test consisted of only 2 questions with a total number of 100 points:1) Your name? The question (1 points)2) Which tire burst?
