Don't get me wrong, I love the game, I just felt like I was done lol. Same here, I'm just bored of playing this repetitive game. I really don't know why I bought it in the first place, but I did. I think I just got into a rush of buying/downloading games during the holiday season, and this was the one that was waiting for me in the mail when I got home. I should've stuck to the games I had a Steam account for, or just downloaded them from PCGamesN and then uninstalled them. But I didn't, so I'm being punished. No, this is what you get. Just keep playing, and you'll get good at it. Once you get used to some level of skill and strategy, the game will start to take shape and present new challenges. You'll get better and better as you go along. In May 2015, before he launched an Australian version of his signature brand of all-in-one hair colouring, the creator of the permanent wave – known as the Egyptian – Ernie Castel was diagnosed with cancer. In the past year, he has returned to the stage, while still making regular appearances in Melbourne as one of Australia's most loved impresarios. At the opening of his latest show, the Misquito Nightclub and Bar, in Melbourne, at the Federation Square, the legendary Australian comedian insisted that he was no longer a balding cancer patient. But he has often returned to the subject of his short-term hair loss, which, he has told the audience, was due to stress. He spoke to me recently about his motivations for continuing to work – with the help of a full head of hair – to put a show together. “My feeling is that you have 520fdb1ae7
