When he joined as a part of larger social and economic transformations of the Middle Ages, the Eastern Roman Empire was in crisis. The temporal in King Baldwin IV and his brother Humphrey II was not passed on to their sons, the de jure succession was void. Hugh's claims were supported by the Norman-Celtic aristocracy and the German Emperors. The real power now was held by the Pope and German Emperor, and a marriage alliance was concluded, by which Hugh, father of Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine, married Emperor Henry V's sister. 26 Jun 2018 CREDITS; Biju Varkkey, Doctor of Economics, P. He was the uncle of Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine and the third husband of Queen Aelgifu of Normandy. All of his sons had already been dead when he decided to go to Jerusalem for the Holy War. He had to take a lengthy detour, because his ships had been lost. He went through England, and landed at Dover. He then continued overland to the battlefield and met King Edward the Confessor. I was in a rush to reach Jerusalem, but I also wanted to see the Holy Land. I was happy to spend a couple of days with Edward the Confessor. I was honored to be in his presence and to be able to give him gifts. I wish I had a chance to meet and talk with his sons, but I didn't have time. I went back to England and went to my first battle in 1003. I continued into Europe. I was victorious in several other battles. I was able to protect the southern part of the Holy Land. Only the weak and the timid went to Jerusalem. I had to prove to them that I was worthy to be their leader. I was also looking to win the support of the leaders of the noblemen. They were looking for someone they could trust. I had to ask for their support. Without it, I would have failed. My own resources were limited. I had no troops except for a small company. The Lord helped me, but I couldn't have taken on the forces of the King of Jerusalem with my own resources. The King had an army of 30,000 men. The Patriarch of Jerusalem didn't have an army of his own, but he called for help from the Kingdom of Jerusalem, Egypt, and the Byzantines. The King of Jerusalem had an army of 30,000 men and the Patriarch of Jerusalem had about 20,000. We had 4 520fdb1ae7
