Kingsley Machine M-60, circa 1930

Enclosure available for securing machine & type

Meet the KING(SLEY)

Kingsley Machine M-60

Made in the 1930's, the M-60 Kingsley was one of the most iconic hotstamping machine of its time. It features a fully analogue temperature control unit and manual press. Type needed to be manually set, centred, and slotted for heating. It is our mainstay equipment feature which we have multiple units of, and we provide additional machines for high profile events to ensure smooth running and instantaneous replacement in the rare case of a breakdown.

The duration of each print depends on the number of characters. As a ballpark figure, every character will take 30-seconds to set, heat, print, and reset. An 11-character name, for instance "J.P. MORGAN" will take about 5 minutes. Blank spaces and symbols like "." are counted as characters as they add to the time taken for typesetting.

Spatial requirements:

Machine footprint - 25cm width x 35cm depth x 30cm height

Working space - 45cm x 60cm minimum

Enclosure footprint - 40cm x 40cm x 52cm

Electrical Point (1 socket per machine) - 30cm x 10cm

Print MEDIUM

We can print on genuine leather, faux leather, PVC, PU, canvas, velvet, paper, cardboard and wood. For other medium not listed above, contact us for more information.

Item must be a flat plane of uniform thickness, ie. no change in thickness from the top of the text to the bottom of the text, or from the beginning of the text to the end of the text. If one side is thicker than the other, when the press is engaged, the thickest part will be marked, while the thinnest part will not have a clear mark of the die or type.

Items should not be thicker than 3cm.

Suitable items: wallets, luggage tags, labels, book covers, laptop sleeves, key straps, bag straps, and other similar types of products.

Unsuitable items: rounded/puffy balloon bags, bucket bags, uneven surfaces or textures, corners or edges of large items that need to be held down under pressure.
