Dear Friend of Possibility Management,

Twenty-five years ago, you would have found Clinton Callahan feeling angry and scared enough to organize and deliver the first Expand The Box training in the world. It is a cold weekend in March 1998, in Hamburg Germany. Twenty-seven participants gather in a hotel in downtown Hamburg, Germany. Clinton wears a black business suit, white shirt, and colored tie. Two trainer friends, Thomas Bormann and Bernhard Uhl, sit alertly in the rear of the training space at a table writing feedback notes to share with Clinton on each break. Most of the participants are from the Information Technology sector. What Clinton remembers most is feeling scared, sweating a lot, and navigating an entirely new intensity of High Level Fun.

This first training is not called Expand The Box. It is called Kreationstraining für Führungskräfte (Creation Training for Business Leaders). Nonetheless, it delivers so much value that one of the participants, Jürgen Fuchs, a director at CSC Ploenzke AG, hires Clinton straight-away to deliver two more such trainings to his top managers.

It is nearly 23:00 Saturday night on the evening of the second day of the first CSC Ploenzke training. Participants have just departed from a tough day in the training room where unconscious Gremlin-empowered Box-defense strategies were fully active and fiercely confronted. Clinton sits in the vague, rather exhausted uncertainty of not being very appreciated by these battle-trained managers, when Jürgen Fuchs steps forward from the shadows. He strides over to Clinton, grabs him by the collar of his coat, drags him over to the flipchart board, and points to Clinton’s rough sketch of a person standing inside of a box. He jabs his finger at the diagram, puts his face emphatically close to Clinton’s face, and says, “This! This is what you are doing in the training! You are expanding people’s Boxes!”

The name of the training instantly changes, and it sticks.

A quarter-Century later, Expand The Box training is being delivered in Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Costa Rica, Denmark, Germany, Guatemala, Mexico, New Zealand, Poland, Portugal, Switzerland, and USA.

Even though S.P.A.R.K.s are being translated into twenty different languages, many new ETB trainers are needed to share this immense nonmaterial wealth in new cultures.

Possibilitators around the world are unfolding hidden talents for cavitating and navigating healing and transformational spaces, both online and in-person, both for individuals and in groups, for example, in Possibility Teams, Rage Club, Fear Club, Possibility Coaching, WorkTalks, Workshops, articles, and books.

There is now such an evolving abundance of treasures to share that we realize the Sources of Clarity and Possibility flowing through Possibility Management are indeed infinite. What an amazing surprise to discover!

This Summer, from 3-6 August 2023, Possibility Management Trainers and Spaceholders are invited to the Possibility Management UnConference at the Möglichkeitenraum in Steinhagen, Germany, to meet in person, inspire and be inspired by the latest discoveries made in Possibility Management spaces.

This Fall, from 18-22 October 2023, everyone is invited to participate in the first annual Archiarchy Maker Fair near Warsaw, Poland. The AMF is the gathering of Archiarchal gameworld builders, and those who want to learn the skills for inventing and inhabiting the Gaian gameworlds in which regenerative human cultures thrive on Earth.

Phase 1 of Archiarchy is already complete: the culture of Archiarchy now exists on Earth. Phase 2 of Archiarchy now begins: inhabiting Archiarchy together. This is where you Archiarchal Gamewworld Builders can truly shine. The makers of Archiarchy are us!
